TAFT'S OWN VIEW OF HIS WORK AS CHIEF EXECUTIVE

Reviews Acts of Administration and Thinks on the Whole He Has Done Well.

WOULD MODIFY WINONA TALK

Still Believes, However, That Payne-Aldrich Tariff Law Did Revise Downward.

PROUD OF THE CORPORATION TAX

THE PRESIDENT'S WORDS.

My happiness is not dependent on holding any office; I shall go back to private life with no heart burnings if the people, after an unprejudiced review of my administration, conclude that some one else can serve them to their greater advantage.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—President Taft's own view of his administration is to be set forth in an extended authorized interview which will be published in next Saturday's issue of the Outlook. The interview was secured by Francis E. Leupp, and THE TRIBUNE is authorized to reprint portions of it with credit to the Outlook.

Would Modify Winona Speech.

In the course of the interview Mr. Leupp asked the president:

"If you could begin your administration anew would you repeat your Winona speech tomorrow?"

"In phraseology, no; in effect, yes," the president replied. "Had I known as much then as I do now, I should have realized that there are some things one cannot leave to be taken for granted. I dictated that speech to a stenographer on the cars between two stations and glanced through it only enough to straighten its grammar; it was sent out by the press with correspondingly little ceremony, so that the papers received it in all sorts of shapes.

"If I had prepared it two or three weeks before and revised it deliberately, as I ought to have done, I should have clarified several passages. And, particularly, I should have changed the sentence where I proclaim the Payne tariff act the best ever passed. The comparative would have been a better description than the superlative; for, whatever its shortcomings, the act still contains less to be criticised than its predecessors, and it did, as a whole, revise the existing schedules downward."

Interview Just After Big Trip.

The interview was secured from the president while he was in his cottage at Virginia Hot Springs after his recent forty-nine day trip through the country. Mr. Leupp explains that the outline of the talk was written from memory and that he obtained permission to present it "because it seemed to him likely to convey to the public mind a juster impression of the chief figure in our national life than could be derived from any more formal presentation of the subject matter."

"You have been criticised, Mr. President," said the interviewer, "for bringing two Democrats into the Republican cabinet."

"And I plead guilty to one," said Mr. Taft. "You must remember that I was elected by Democratic votes, probably polling almost as many as McKinley did in 1896. Let's see: I carried Greater New York; came within 150 votes of carrying Boston; carried Missouri, including a 15,000 plurality in St. Louis; and carried one elector in Maryland, three congressional districts in North Carolina, and more than a third of the counties of Georgia.

Proud of Southern Votes.

"Of this last feat I am especially proud, because my highest political ambition has been, and still is, to take the sting out of the relations between north and south. I have no quixotic idea of being able to break up the solid south myself, but I am trying to lay in that section a strong foundation on which our party can build, so that another decade may perhaps witness a change.

"In appointing Dickinson, the finest type of southern Democrat, I aimed to honor the people; but I suspect that some of his party friends made him feel uneasy in what they affected to regard as a false position politically. However, my selection of Lurton and Lamar for the Supreme bench and my promotion of White to the chief justiceship I rejoiced to make, because I was giving great strength to the court, and at the same time showing to the south that under a Republican administration its eminent men were not denied a part in the highest offices and functions of government."

Desire to Aid Negroes.

Mr. Taft then refers to his desire to aid the negroes toward a real advance by spurring them to more thorough preparation for public service by appointing their worthiest leaders to political honors.

"The other cabinet officer you had in mind, I suppose, was MacVeagh?" resumed Mr. Taft. "I question whether any one who knows would call him a Democrat. As MacVeagh was an administration man in the war era, went over to Cleveland only on the tariff issue, and voted for McKinley, Roosevelt, and myself, he does not impress me as anything but a progressive regular."

Then the president made his statement, quoted in the foregoing, regarding the Winona speech, and the interviewer thereupon asked:

"Is your tariff reduction program based on the theory that it will bring about a corresponding reduction in the cost of living?"

"I think that that effect is greatly over-

RIVER HOLDS BOATS IN GRIP; IMPERILS $125,000 IN RISKS

Freighter Jupiter Dashed Against the Washington Street Tunnel.

BLOCKS 3 OTHER VESSELS

Tugs Battle for Hours to Get Tied Up Craft Out in "Legal Time."

WIN FIGHT BY JUST TWO MINUTES

The Chicago river, which lake seamen say is the ornariest body of water between South Chicago and West Superior and which is probably the most picturesquely "cussed" navigable stream in the world, last night gave a flagrant illustration of its total depravity by taking a death grip on four big freighters as they were worming their way out to the lake. It held them up until they had almost forfeited $125,000 worth of insurance.

Yesterday was the last day of navigation on the great lakes. By midnight four boats—the Jupiter, owned by the Gilchrist Transportation company; the Lehigh, owned by the Anchor line; the Mohawk, also owned by the Anchor line; and the Arthur Orr—were required by the lakes insurance law to have passed the two mile crib to escape forfeiture of their insurance.

Dashed Against Tunnel.

At 7 o'clock last night the Jupiter was steaming up at its dock at the Jackson boulevard bridge. At 7:15 it swung from its moorings and started up stream toward the lake. At 7:30 the river seized the huge vessel in its powerful grasp and swung it broadside against the Washington street tunnel.

That blocked navigation outward from the river totally. The Lehigh, the Mohawk, and the Orr were behind the Jupiter. There was no possible way of their getting out into the lake until the Jupiter went forward. And the river, pouring in from the lake by a [illegible] current, wouldn't let the Jupiter move.

That created a situation that will go down into history as one of the Chicago river's choicest annals. Followed a battle between the river and the captains of the four tied up vessels, a half dozen tugboats and the fireboat Graeme Stewart, which lasted to a breathless finish and filled the river from Rush street to Canal with smoke, belching smokestacks, trouble, and profanity for three long hours.

The boats won at last, but only by an eye lash. The last of the vessels, the Orr, passed the two mile crib at exactly 11:58 p. m.

Tugs in Fierce Battle.

Every known expedient was used to get the Jupiter off the tunnel, but the boat couldn't be budged. The combined power of its propellers and the engines of all the tug boats was not enough to pull it over the tunnel against the obstinate river current.

As the time slipped by the captains became frantic. They could see disgrace and loss of their commissions ahead, unless the Jupiter was shoved over. In the black night they toiled with fury, straining every nerve to swing the Jupiter around and let it pass on an even keel.

Even the fireboat wasn't strong enough. When the captains discovered this the language they used astonished even the dock laborers. At 10:35 they were in the last stages of desperation. They held a final council. A last desperate expedient was decided on.

The Lehigh was swung out from her dock. She moved up behind the Jupiter. It was now a case of her pushing the Jupiter out or landing on the tunnel herself and creating a blockade that would be absolutely hopeless.

Boats Win at Last.

Cautiously, almost tenderly, the Lehigh crept up to the stern of the Jupiter. Its prow struck it firmly. Then slowly but with ever increasing rapidity its propellers began to revolve. Its wake was churned into a lather of foam. Then something began to happen to the big freighter ahead. Slowly, inch by inch, it slid forward. A minute, two minutes went by. Then with a jerk the Jupiter passed the tunnel ahead and swept out into deep water. The captains had won.

At Madison street there was another jam due to the rattled condition of everybody. But finally all four boats got by.

Then it was a case of putting on all steam and getting out into the lake. The captains did it, but the effort nearly made some of them gray.

Mrs. Anna Godfrey, who donned her husband's clothes and tried to find work, had a Thanksgiving dinner after all. The turkey and vegetables were donated by a State street department store. THE TRIBUNE received a second donation of $10 yesterday. The letter was signed "A Reader." The money will be forwarde dto her at her home, 1144 West Seventeenth street, this morning.

POLICE DRINKERS MUST QUIT FORCE

McWeeny Issues Order That Men Cannot Enter Saloons While on Duty.

GIVES REASON FOR ACTION

Drunkards will no longer be tolerated in the police department. Chief McWeeny says they must either quit drink or the force. This was the Thanksgiving "proclamation," as the members of the department call it, that the chief issued Wednesday night. It was read yesterday at every station in the city.

The chief, who is a teetotaler, has addressed the members of the department heretofore on the subject, but from reports which he has received from investigators the orders regarding drinking have been ignored.

Issues Orders to Officers.

That the wearers of the blue may not misconstrue the chief's attitude he sent the following order to commanding officers:

"I am in receipt of numerous complaints concerning officers in uniform entering saloons while on duty and drinking intoxicating liquor. The impression seems to prevail that there is no intention to enforce paragraphs 1 and 2, section 1, of rule 30 of the rules and regulations of the department.

"You will call the attention of the members of your command to this rule and inform them that it is my intention to strictly enforce the same. Officers in uniform should not enter saloons except in the immediate discharge of their duty, and they shall remain there only as long as it may be necessary to tranact their business. Even if they do enter a saloon on business they shall under no circumstances indulge in the use of intoxicating liquors.

"You will notify patrol sergeants to give this matter their careful attention and prefer charges against any officer guilty of the violation of this rule. Any officer guilty of violating the above rule will be severely disciplined."

Has Seen Good Men Ruined.

"I always have preached temperance to policemen," said the chief last night. "Not that I am a crank on the subject, but I have seen what strong drink has done to many a good policeman. Ninety per cent of the men who come before the trial board can blame liquor for getting them in bad.

"There is no person who needs a cool, clear head as much as a policeman. He doesn't know at what moment or in what manner he will be called upon to defend his life. The sober policeman has at least an even break with the ordinary man in a hand to hand struggle.

"A policeman should be temperate not alone for his safety, but for his physical well being."

More Expected to Quit Force.

Resignations may follow swiftly upon the heels of future charges brought against police officials by the city civil service commission, according to information obtained yesterday from members of the police force.

One high official said that if the three commanding officers now on trial were found guilty and discharged from the force there was little likelihood that other accused men would face trial. Besides the three commanding officers from the north side awaiting trial it is reported from authoritative sources that fully a dozen other commanding officers are certain to be made the targets of charges resulting from the commission's investigation.

The north side men have denied they had intentions of resigning and the four west side officials under suspension denied all along that they had any intention of quitting under fire, but one of the quartet, Capt. Plunkett, did resign the morning the trial started.

Resignations Are Expected.

It has been learned since the trial of the remaining three began that they also seriously considered the same move. It was even predicted yesterday that Inspector Dorman, Lieut. Howard, and Lieut. Ambrose may quit before their hearing is ended.

It is known the commission has much stronger evidence to support charges of neglect of duty and inefficiency against many commanding officers than that which has so far been offered by Attorney Wheelock in the present trial. This information has leaked to members of the force, and is said to be responsible for the determination of a number of officials to resign if they are made the subjects of charges.

Resume Trial Today.

The trial of the police officials will be resumed this afternoon and Attorney Wheelock expects to finish the prosecution tomorrow. More witnesses will testify as to conditions and evidence to prove additional charges against Lieut. Howard will be introduced. He is accused of drinking in saloons after closing time and making racing bets in a west side bookmaker's place.

LONELY MOTHER AND SON HAVE NEWSBOY GUESTS.

Ask "The Tribune" to Find Poor Youths, and All Are Made Happy at Dinner.

Two newsboys were made happy last night. A Thanksgiving dinner such as they had never seen before was placed before them and they were told to eat to the limit.

Late yesterday afternoon two "Good Fellows," mother and son, who would not allow their names to be used, noticing the prospect of a Thanksgiving dinner by themselves, telephoned THE TRIBUNE and asked for help.

"We are lonesome," said the man, "and we can think of nothing better than the chance to eat our Thanksgiving dinner with a couple of newsboys. If you can find them, please send them out. They will have all the turkey they can eat."

It was not difficult to find two boys who jumped at the opportunity of getting a real Thanksgiving dinner. They turned over their papers to the "boss," buttoned their coats, and exclaimed:

"Me for the big eats."

The boys were Andrew Baranowski and Thomas Lardie. Both are 14 years old. Asked if they had their Thanksgiving dinner—

"Sure," said Thomas. "We had hamburger steak, but no turkey."

The boys were taken to THE TRIBUNE office to wash up. Then they were put on an elevated train.

"They're just the thing," said the voice of the "Goodfellow" over the telephone after he had met them at the elevated station and taken them to his home.

BOYS TRY GUN SHELL; ONE DEAD

Other Probably Will Die—Children Find Ammunition—Elder Strikes It with a Hammer.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—George Hartwick, 7 years old, was killed, and William Menke, 3 years old, probably fatally injured today by the explosion of a shotgun shell with which they were playing in the Hartwick home.

The two boys were playing in the kitchen. Their parents were in a front room. In a drawer of the kitchen table the older boy found a shell loaded with buckshot.

"I can shoot it off," he said, picking up a hammer. The smaller boy watched him wonderingly. The hammer fell, striking the percussion cap.

Mrs. Hartwick rushed in to find her son dead, with a buckshot in his heart. The brass portion of the shell had struck the Menke boy in the head.

Engineer James Mills of Austin Loses Sight When Boiler of Locomotive Explodes.

As James Mills, an engineer, was bringing in a train of stock cars from Clinton, Ia., to Chicago yesterday, the boiler of his engine exploded, seriously injuring him and destroying his sight. Mills is in a hospital at Rochelle, Ill.

MANY KNEW HER; NONE KNOWS KIN

Miss Julia Wolcott, "Seamstress to Oak Park," Dies; Coroner Seeks Relatives.

CLEW TO BROTHER FAILS.

For twenty years Miss Julia Wolcott sewed for many Oak Park families. Yesterday she died in the Oak Park hospital. Everybody knew her, but no one knew whom to notify of her death.

Miss Wolcott began as a music teacher. Deafness afflicted her while she was still a young woman. She had to give up her chosen vocation and learn another. She became a seamstress. She made dresses for women who went to Oak Park as brides. She lived to make gowns for their grown up daughters. She sewed for the same families year after year. She became an institution.

Knocked Down in Street.

On Nov. 22 Miss Wolcott was knocked down by a team of horses in Randolph street, between State and Dearborn streets. A policeman helped her to her feet. He thought she was no more than shaken by her fall. He put her on a Lake street car. At Austin avenue an Oak Park policeman helped her to a drug store. She asked him to call up Dr. C. E. Hemingway. The doctor found her pitifully bruised. He took her to the hospital.

It was only after her death that those who knew her realized they did not know who her relatives were or where to find them. A card of the Pinkerton detective agency on which was written the name of D. C. Wolcott was found in a pocket of the dress she wore when she was injured.

Clew to Brother Fails.

The detectiva agency could furnish no information. The name was not to be found in the directories. Some one said it was that of a brother, but no one knew where he lived.

Miss Wolcott had a room at 45 Central avenue, River Forest. It contained nothing that helped to identify her relatives. Everybody is wondering what kind of a funeral she will have. No one has yet come forward to say where she shall be buried.

STOKES TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL; MAY NOT APPEAR AT COURT.

Acute Indigestion Forces Witness in Case Against Girls Under Care of a Trained Nurse.

New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—W. E. D. Stokes was taken with a severe attack of acute indigestion this afternoon at the "Old Glory" sale of horses at Madison Square garden that landed him in bed at the Ansonia under care of a trained nurse. It may keep him from the Criminal courts building to take up his part in the trial of the shooting show girls that will be continued tomorrow.

Stokes is restless under the doctor's care. It is thought, however, that he will not be out until Monday.

MOTHER BURNED IN SAVING SON.

Youth Lights Cigaret While Cleaning Clothes with Gasoline—Explosion Results.

Edward Sebastian lighted a cigaret while cleaning a suit of clothes with gasoline at his home, 6429 North Hermitage avenue, yesterday. An explosion resulted and while he was enveloped in flames, his mother tried to save him. Both were severely burned. Neighbors ran into the Sebastian home and extinguished the flames. The mother, Mrs. Marie Sebastian, was so severely injured that physicians advised that she be taken to Alexian Brothers' hospital. The son, 2[illegible] years old, remained under the doctors' care at the house.

CIVIC LEAGUES TO HELP COURT ALLOT PENSIONS TO POOR

Nine Groups Ready to Put Vast Corps of Workers at Judge Pinckney's Service.

WAR ON WARD HEELERS

Will Weed Out Undeserving Among Many Applicants for State Money Aid.

ALL RESPOND TO JURIST'S APPEAL

Judge Merritt W. Pinckney of the Juvenile court has in effect appealed to civic and philanthropic organizations of Chicago to aid him in administration of the so called mothers' pension, or funds to parents, law. If he is not given assistance the judge fears the results.

There are certain indications already that some applications for pensions are inspired. Certain politicians and ward heelers are thought responsible. It is believed they plan to build political fences from money intended for deserving poor.

To guard against this tendency the judge asks, needs, and expects outside assistance. Responsible officials of nine prominent organizations predicted yesterday their societies would coöperate with the court so worthy mothers may be helped, and that any intended political raids may be blocked.

Here Are Nine Prospective Aids.

The names of the nine organizations are:

United Charities.
Council of Chicago Settlements.
United Catholic Charities.
Society of St. Vincent de Paul.
Jewish Aid society.
Immigrants' Protective league.
Juvenile Protective association.
Woman's City club.
Industrial club.

In a few days the Association of Commerce probably will be added to the list. President Harry A. Wheeler personally favors the plan, but hesitates to predict what the association will do.

Anxious to Stop Abuse.

Some of the nine listed above already have investigated the subject thoroughly, and they promised not only moral support and advice, but also more material aid, if necessary. They said they saw clearly the possibilities of abuse and misuse of the law and are anxious to prevent such practices at the start. From the expressions, it appears little remains for the judge to get needed coöperation, except to send a formal request to those interested in juvenile welfare.

The scheme of the court is to get an advisory committee of such organizations as those named above. He wants to ask them for plans and methods of administering the law. He would like the benefit of their experience, judgment, and information. Possibly he will ask to borrow trained investigators who have learned from experience the tricks and schemes used to deceive those giving charity.

Wants Taxpayer to Be Satisfied.

Some predict $75,000 to $150,000 will be spent in 1912 under this act. Judge Pinckney says he wants a plan by which the taxpayers, who supply this money, will know it is properly and judiciously distributed.

"The taxpayer who believes his taxes are being properly expended," said Judge Pinckney, "is seldom a grumbler. He would not complain of the taxes he is called upon to pay for charity if he was convinced only the deserving are being aided, and those only to the extent that their necessities demand. Under such conditions charity of all kinds would be given more cheerfully and freely.

"I object to the term mother's pension fund. It should be called 'funds to parents act.' No worthy mother, because she is poor and is aided, should be called a pensioner. Poverty alone should not be sufficient reason for separating a good mother from her children. It is the duty of this state and city to supply the funds to keep all children at home if they have a worthy and fit mother.

Praises Act of Legislature.

"It is too big a job for one judge, with assistance, to see that those worthy mothers who need aid receive it and only those. Here is an excellent opportunity for all civic and charitable organizations to aid the Juvenile court. This act is one of the best ever passed for the aid of the poor if properly administered.

"For the court to act fairly and justly in all cases, accurate, reliable, and complete information must be collected regarding each applicant. The organizations referred to can give great assistance. It seems important to me beyond the appreciation of those who have not had experience in such matters that the right start should be made in administrating this fund."

The United Charities has had considerable experience in handling mothers' pensions. Their reports show between 500 and 700 families are constantly on pensions. This requires about $72,000 a year.

Willing to Aid Court.

Charles H. Wacker, president of the organization, was asked whether he favored the plan suggested by Judge Pinckney. He replied:

"Administration of the so-called mother's pension act will be highly beneficial or materially detrimental, depending directly upon the way it is administered.

"If the court should request it we would give any reasonable assistance desired. We would be willing to join with others engaged in similar work in giving the court the results of our experience and be willing to discuss any problems he may encounter."

"Would you loan some of your trained investigators?"

"I think we would," answered Mr. Wacker. "We appreciate the difficulties in getting facts. The investigators need not only ability and training, but experience. Much depends upon the efficiency of the visitors. Let me add the community is fortunate in having a man of the temperament, ability, character, and energy of Judge Pinckney to administer this law. He is thoroughly in earnest and unusually conscientious."

Tells of Useful Record.

Sherman C. Kingsley, superintendent of United Charities, was asked if he thought the idea of Judge Pinckney practicable.

"The suggestion has considerable merit, and no doubt the United Charities would be willing to coöperate with other agencies, if their services are desired," said Mr. Kingsley. "We have a record of every person or family we have aided, which indicates the degree of their need, the character of the beneficiary, the amount of aid we have extended, the aid given by other organizations or individuals, and in cases of pensions our reasons for continuing to give aid. Our system, as that of other organizations, might be of value as suggestive. We, like others, have information regarding the methods usually employed by the unworthy.

Mothers Need Instruction.

"It is often as important to give information to a mother regarding ways to make her money buy the most. We conduct a school for mothers where they are taught how to buy foodstuffs, what to buy, and how to prepare it to get the most nutriment and enjoyment out of it.

"Often what is most desired by the needy is a job. They don't want charity in the form of money or food or clothing. They want a chance to work.

"Then, giving of aid is only part of the work in handling charity. There must be the continual investigation. Perhaps the husband has returned to the deserted wife, or for some other reason there is no necessity for further giving.

"It is important to the Juvenile court judge that he withdraw aid when assistance is no longer needed, otherwise the purpose of the law will not be carried out."

Joseph Meyer, county agent, was commended by both Mr. Kingsley and Judge Pinckney for his aid in administration of the law notwithstanding that he feels more keenly than the others the pressure of politics.

Settlements Anxious to Aid.

Miss Jane Addams, president of the Council of Chicago Settlements, said all possible aid, if requested, would be given by the organization in administration of the funds to parents act.

"Miss Julia Lathrop, chairman of the committee on public charity, has already taken the subject up with Judge Pinckney," she said. "Twenty settlements, representing all parts of Chicago, belong to the council. We have 300 active members, who are thoroughly acquainted with the residents of their settlements. We have not investigated cases, as that term usually is interpreted, but our sources of correct information regarding the poor are only limited by the county's boundary lines.

"Members of the council believe our organization should be placed at the service of Judge Pinckney. He has a most difficult task and a most important one. Abuses must be prevented, and that can be done only by the most thorough supervision. Our organization is accustomed to keep continually in touch with the poor, and this is most important in the administration of this law. We have the ear of all neighborhoods and the poor assist us in our work. We certainly will be glad to put all at the service of the Juvenile court."

Catholic Charities Ready.

"Judge Pinckney does not have to issue any appeal to us for aid," said the Rev. Father C. J. Quille, in charge of the Working Boys' home, who also is superintendent of the Catholic charities. "Either myself or Father J. Marshall Leddy is in Juvenile court every day. We know Judge Pinckney's ideas and are in full sympathy and accord with them. He administers the law impartially and with care, and we are willing to do anything reasonable to get the best results from the law.

"It will take more than the two watchful eyes of one man to be certain that no abuses creep in. The law can be a distinct benefit, or it can be made to serve the purposes of unscrupulous persons, according to the way it is administered. We will give every aid we can."

Society Already Aids Court.

James F. Kennedy, president of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, showed a minute understanding of the law. He had much information regarding the way it has been administered to date. The first case considered under the act was suggested by this society. They have already adopted a policy of investigating in advance all applications referred to the court before his investigators start an inquiry.

"I have heard some discussion of the idea of Judge Pinckney before," said Mr. Kennedy. "It appeals to me as a good one, and our society will not only continue the close coöperation now in effect but will aid in any other reasonable way the court may request. We desire an efficient and effective administration of the law and think it highly pertinent that there shall be active coöperation between all agencies."

Catholic charity provides no funds for publicity or salaries.

Jewish Aid Gives $125,000 Annually.

The Jewish Aid society collects and disburses about $125,000 annually. S. L. Sulzberger, its president, said a member of the committee gladly will be appointed to coöperate with Judge Pinckney, if it is requested.

"The society will cheerfully coöperate," he added. "We also will be pleased to give any information we can. On Jewish families we have collected much data. Our investigators know personally all who are given assistance and we willingly will investigate any Jewish families which apply to the court."

Help from Immigrants' League.

A. A. McCormick took issue with THE TRIBUNE representative for calling the law "the mothers' pension act." He insisted that name gave the public a wrong impression. Mr. McCormick is president of the Immigrants' Protective league.

"If this law is to give its greatest benefit, experts must be employed to see that the aid gets into the right hands," said Mr. McCormick. "Success of the whole experiment rests upon administration of the law. Great care must be exercised to see that the funds are judiciously distributed. I appreciate it is a big job for one man, and you may be assured that we will give any assistance that we can."

Chance for Wrongs Seen.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, president of the Juvenile Protective association, has had several talks with Judge Pinckney relative to the law and its administration. She appeared to appreciate the possibility for irregularities.

"There is hardly any need for me to say we will help the court in every way we can," said Mrs. Bowen. "There are some difficulties in the way of proper administration, there are opportunities for errors. The need for thorough investigation is highly important.

"Not only should there be trained and experienced investigators to ascertain the need of the family and the character of its head, but equally well qualified persons should continue to visit all families aided.

"The court should not only know that aid should be given to a certain mother but he should know that she continues to need the aid so long as charity is given. He should know, also, that she is getting the most possible out of the aid given her. An enormous task has been imposed upon the Juvenile court, and it is just as important as it is large."

Pledges Woman's City Club.

Mrs. Mary Wilmarth, president of the Woman's club, is ill, but Miss Anna Nichols, superintendent of the organization, pledged its active coöperation. Her information regarding the law and its administration was extensive.

"We do not give charity, but we are much interested in good government," said Miss Nichols. "Our club will only be too glad to give any assistance it can."

After discussing the possible misuse of the law she added:

"I do not approve of all the advertising given this law. Some mothers are made to believe they are to receive a pension regardless of their financial condition. They want to take something from the state that they would not think of accepting from private charity."

Capital Idea, Says Rehm.

"I think the judge has a capital idea," said William H. Rehm, president of the Industrial club. "No invitation has been given us to coöperate, but no doubt we would, if the judge desires it. I will try and ask the judge to make a speech explaining the law and its administration to our club at the first opportunity.

President Wheeler of the Association of Commerce said a committee had attended a discussion of the funds to parents act, but that no report had been made. Therefore he was without official information regarding the impressions of those investigating the subject.

"Personally," said Mr. Wheeler, "I think the judge is deserving of assistance. This law is an experiment. It may be good or it may not, depending in large measure, if not entirely, upon its administration."

AIMS TO CONTROL RAILWAY FINANCE

Taft Commission Reports Plan Intended to Prevent Overcapitalization.

CONGRESS TO ACT ON IT.

Enables Investor to Know Value of Property Represented by Securities.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Not only the railroad promoter, the banker, and the capitalist, but the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer, and the workingman, are intimately interested in the report the railroad stock and bond commission has submitted to the president.

This report will be the groundwork for a reform of vital interest to the producing and traveling public—the prevention of overcapitalization of railroads. It was prepared after an exhaustive investigation by five eminent men appointed by President Taft under authority of law.

These men are Arthur T. Hadley, president of Yale university; Walter L. Fisher, secretary of the interior; B. H. Mayer, interstate commerce commission; Frederick Strauss, a New York financier, and Frederick N. Judson, a lawyer of St. Louis.

Suggestions for New Law.

The conclusions of the commission, obtained tonight by the correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, propose the enactment of a law covering the following points:

1. Careful definition of the purpose for which an interstate railroad may issue stocks, bonds, or notes.

2. Requirement that a record of each proposed issue shall be incorporated in the minutes of the corporation, a majority of the directors of which must subscribe thereto.

3. A statement covering this record, sworn to individually by each director, must be filed with the interstate commerce commission.

4. Presentation to the interstate commerce commission of an annual report, attested under oath by a majority of the directors, which shall state with particularity the facts in connection with the sale or other disposition of the securities, the proceeds obtained therefrom, and the use to which such proceeds were put.

5. Authorization of the interstate commerce commission to make an investigation of the issues and expenditures.

Curbs High Finance Swindling.

It is not conceivable that the proposed legislation, if enacted, will put an end to high finance of the swindling variety which has characterized so many railroad promotions. But it is hardly likely that a body of financiers would undertake to float a proposition that might create a national scandal.

The findings of the commission necessarily would reach the public. Thus there would be publicity from the beginning of the transaction until its close. The people would be informed of all the facts and could guide themselves accordingly.

REAL THANKS IN THIS HOME

Mittelmeyer Family Rejoices That $870 "Nest Egg" Is Safe.

MONEY IS NOW IN THE BANK.

Man Who Thought He'd Lost His Money Says Santa Claus Is Coming.

At the Thanksgiving table in his house at 7306 South Green street Joseph Mittelmeyer prayed with bowed head yesterday. About the table were grouped his two children, Marx and Eleanor, aged 7 and 8 years respectively, his wife and a few friends, and the prayer that went up carried with it more than the usual note of thankfulness.

A few weeks ago Mittelmeyer, a journeyman carpenter, thought he had lost his entire savings of $870 in cash, secured as the result of the sale of his old property at 8530 Elizabeth street. The money was found in his house after two days of despairing search. With the recovery of his money, as related in THE TRIBUNE, the menacing wolf vanished, and so Thanksgiving was an occasion of rejoicing.

Santa Claus Is Coming.

During the meal little Eleanor murmured several times that Santa Claus may come again this year "'cause mamma says that papa believes in Christmas now."

"You bet he'll come this year and he won't be any charity Santa Claus, either," said Papa Mittelmeyer.

The scene had a temporary finale when the children broke into songs of the fatherland and the entire gathering joined in. Then the conversation turned to the money, the loss and recovery of which determined the future of the Mittelmeyer household.

Money Now Safe in Bank's Care.

"I have placed the money in the Chicago City bank at 6233 South Halsted street, and there it will remain safe until I have made arrangements to provide for a future home," said Mr. Mittelmeyer.

SHOT AFTER FIGHT IN SALOON.

Railway Employe Quarrels with Fellow Workmen—Gets Bullet in Abdomen.

Martin Obsicina, living at 3946 West Ohio street, quarreled with men with whom he worked in the Northwestern railway shops last night and was shot through the abdomen. The quarrel started in a saloon near Obsicina's home and was continued in the street. When he was found wounded it was believed at first he was a victim of robbers. He was taken to the county hospital, and the police arrested Peter Iconosszis.

WAYMAN DEFEATS JURY TAMPERERS

State's Attorney Insists That Venires Be Quartered Closer to Courts.

MOIR MAKES AGREEMENT.

Plans Made to Oppose Contract for Housing Trial Bodies at the Morrison.

State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman yesterday won a point against "jury tampering" when he made an agreement with Harry Moir, proprietor of the Morrison hotel, that juries shall be quartered nearer the Criminal court building. Last Wednesday Moir, a personal friend of Peter Bartzen, president of the board of county commissioners, was awarded a $9,000 contract by the public service commission for quartering juries.

Wayman protested, maintaining that marching juries through the streets to the Morrison hotel would put a premium on "jury fixing." He declared the bailiffs had a hard fight against "fixers" when the Alexandria hotel, a shorter distance away, was used.

The Republican commissioners declare that the agreement with Moir will cause additional expense for automobile hire. They plan to fight the contract at the next board meeting.

MOTHER TRACES MISSING GIRLS

Edith Klemm and Hilda Sammonson ate their Thanksgiving dinner at their respective homes instead of in some restaurant as was their original intention when they left their homes on Tuesday. They were found yesterday morning as they were leaving the Hotel Warner, East Thirty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, by Mrs. Edith Klemm, 122 East Forty-first street.

Edith, who is 16 years old, was employed as a telephone operator. She did not report for work Monday evening and was scolded by her mother.

Tuesday afternoon the daughter packed her clothes and left the house with Hilda Sammonson. The latter is 18 years old and lives at 4011 Wabash avenue. She explained that she had no other reason for leaving home than to keep Edith Klemm company.

OPENS NEW STREET CAR LINES.

Company Puts Car Through on Fortieth Avenue, Enters Berwyn Today, and Lyons Possibly Later.

The Chicago Railways company yesterday opened a new through street car line on the west side. A car was operated over the Fortieth avenue tracks from Thirty-first street to the Bohemian National cemetery, near the north city limits. The line will be put in operation for the public this morning, the car which ran over it yesterday carrying only city and traction officials, who were on an inspection trip.

The town of Berwyn also will have street car service today for the first time since last spring.

"DOWN AND OUTS" FED BY RICH MAN

Arthur Meeker Oversees Banquet Given to State Street Outcasts.

CHILD BRIGHTENS FEAST.

Little Girl Restored to Mother Honor Guest at Happiest Dinner of Day.

Wealth and poverty rubbed elbows at a Thanksgiving dinner last evening. Three hundred men who felt that they had little to be thankful for were guests of the Chicago Christian Industrial league at the opening of the branch at 806 and 808 South State street. Arthur Meeker, the packer, who is president of the organization, was there to see how things were going.

Mr. Meeker did not speak. He wouldn't face the battery of cameras. An officer of the league explained that its president did not appreciate publicity of his philanthropies.

As he was leaving Mr. Meeker found the exit blocked by a half hundred outcasts. There was room in each for a square meal, but there was no room inside the hall. Mr. Meeker pulled out his wallet and extracted two $10 bills. These he handed to George A. Kilbey, superintendent of the league, with instructions to feed these men.

Good News Spreads Quickly.

Then Mr. Meeker told the few in the front who had been pressing noses against the glass in the door that they would be fed. The good news spread through the small crowd quicker than the packer could elbow his way through. Before his bobbing silk hat had reached the curb a cheer came from the men.

With a worker of the league at the head the hungry horde began its march across the street to "Pittsburg Joe's." The squad had doubled in numbers before it settled expectantly in the heavy odor of frying meat. But $20 goes a long way in "Pittsburg Joe's." Every appetite was satisfied.

Main Dinner "Well Attended."

The dinner hour in the league's rooms had been set for 5:30 o'clock. In mid-afternoon the first "down and outs" gathered in front of the mission. Then they came in a steady stream. Most of them had no overcoats. With upturned collars and hands buried in trouser pockets they huddled close like a drove of weary, storm beaten sheep. When the door was opened wide they swept into the dining hall, carrying a big policeman off his feet.

The league's branch is in the heart of "Whisky row." The rooms were formerly occupied by a saloon. Such reminders as "Have you forgotten mother?" have taken the places on the walls formerly filled with vicious pictures. Hymns have succeeded the raucous ragtime of the electric piano. The place has been rejuvenated.

Old Frequenters Present.

Men who frequented the saloon which once thrived there were present last night. The bountiful dinner of turkey, beef, pork, vegetables, ice cream, and mince pie made them forget the free lunch. Some of them were old, and despair lurked in their deadened eyes. "Booze" had graven his signature on the faces of others. There were many young fellows with whom life has been hard.

Dick Lane told his story. It was a tale of real life—tragic, but with its illuminating touches of humor. Dick Lane has been sixteen years in penitentiaries. Seventeen years ago, when he stepped into the Pacific mission on Van Buren street, saw "the light of salvation," and renounced crime, he was wanted by the police of seven states. He confessed last night that he went to the mission to escape the law.

"Before I accepted God I never had done an honest day's work outside the penitentiary," he said.

"Drunk" Moved by Story.

"That's me, pal," said a middle aged man midway in the audience. The interrupter was drunk. A few of those near him laughed. They soon saw sincerity beneath intoxication. They hid their smiles. As Lane ended in a passionate statement of the glory of "religion," the "souse" broke down and sobbed. At the conclusion of the program he came forward. He said he wanted a job and another kind of life.

"I've lived the life of a transgressor," he said, "and it's hard."

The Rev. Edgar P. Hill, superintendent of the church extension board of the Presbyterian church, directed the program. Judge-elect Henry V. Freeman, who takes the oath of office on Monday and who will deal with men of the caliber he sat among last night, was deeply interested. The Rev. John Balcom Shaw, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, was present.

Supt. Kilbey was enthusiastic.

"We located here on Whisky Row because there are few places which needed us more," he said. "There are few locations in Chicago where there are more homeless men. We are here so that the man who leaves the cheap lodging house need not feel that he must go to the saloon for warmth and companionship. We will conduct a reading room and a free employment bureau in conjunction with the mission work."

Happiest Dinner in Chicago.

There were many happy dinners in Chicago during the day, dinners for the poor made doubly happy because they had been unexpected, dinners for the rich served amid flowers and glossy linen, dinners at which reunited families sat down in fraternal and filial love to all the bounties of the season, dinners where good friends made the hours speed cheerily. But the happiest Thanksgiving dinner in Chicago was served in a little flat at 1302 Mohawk street, the residence of William G. Blohm.

The guests at that banquet were Mrs. Ida Winkelman, who lives upstairs over the Blohms and who works in a laundry, and a 5 year old, red cheeked, flaxen haired girl who is just from Germany and cannot speak a word of English. The little girl is Elmo Winkelman. She is the laundry woman's daughter.

Last February word came to Mrs. Winkelman that her husband, who a short time before had run away from Chicago with their child, had deserted the little girl in Bremen. She began to save money then and about a month ago she had enough to bring her child to this country. The money was sent to Germany and the little girl was to have arrived in Chicago two weeks ago. But Elmo did not come. The mother, in a panic of fear, went to the German consul. He communicated with the New York authorities and learned that Elmo had been detained at Ellis Island. The child was freed. She arrived in Chicago yesterday.

Knows Child by Intuition.

Mrs. Winkelman and Mr. Blohm, who is Mrs. Winkelman's landlord, were at the station to meet her and there was some doubt at first as to whether the mother would be able to identify her child, for it was three years since she had seen her. But when a little girl came through the iron gate with her small hand held tightly in the train conductor's big one, all of Mrs. Winkelman's doubts and fears left her, and with a glad cry she snatched up the child and covered her face with kisses.

Supt. John L. Whitman treated the 1,700 prisoners of the bridewell to a dinner and vaudeville entertainment. After the meal the bridewell inmates, together with 180 boys from the John Worthy school, assembled in chapel where a six act bill was staged. There was a contortionist, a violinist, a German comedian, a monologist, a magician, and a song and dance team.

Applause and stamping of feet shook the building. Half a dozen encores were demanded of each performer.

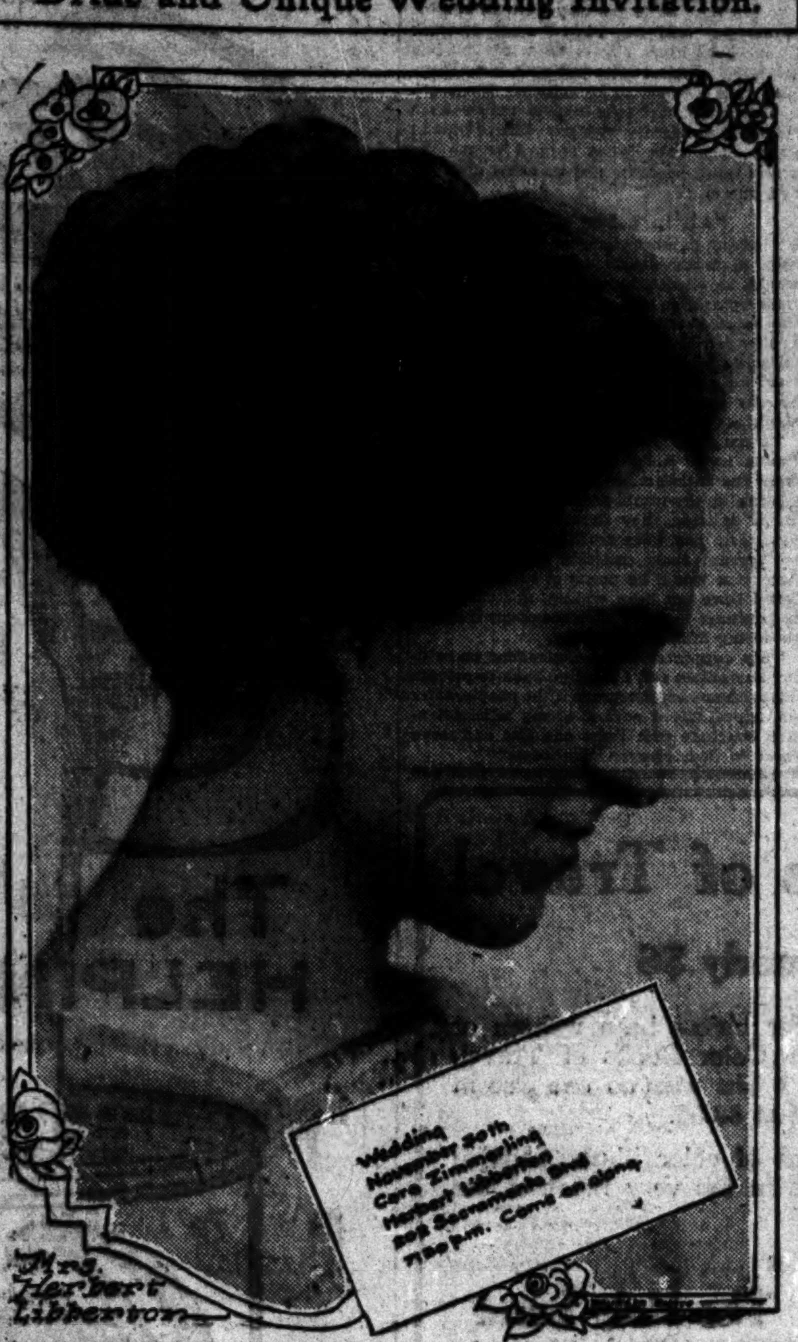
Sheriff Entertains His Prisoners.

Another vaudeville entertainment was given the 400 prisoners in the county jail. Sheriff Michael Zimmer paid the bills. The county board had refused to authorize Jailer Will T. Davies to supply performers. The sheriff was in charge of the exercises, which were held in the chapel.

Maurice [Moss] Enright, sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of Vincent Altman, and the Shobawski sextette of murderers were spectators. Mrs. Jane Quinn and Mrs. Louise Vermilya, both accused of murdering husbands, informed Jailer Davies that they did not care to attend. Mrs. Quinn ate dinner in her cell and Mrs. Vermilya was served in the jail hospital.

At the Children's Memorial hospital, 150 children were entertained by a musical quartet employed by a woman whose identity is undisclosed. Sixty of the children are crippled, twenty-four being helpless. The singers went through the words, so that each little patient heard the music.

Bride and Unique Wedding Invitation.



Several unique features attended the wedding last evening of Miss Cora L. Zimmerling, daughter of Mrs. S. F. Zimmerling, 2635 Emmet street, to J. Herbert Libberton, manager of the Merchants' Pulverizing company.

The invitations to the ceremony were the handiwork of the bridegroom, being hand lettered cards in black and red, the black letters forming the announcement of the wedding and the red letters beneath giving the invitation in the words "Come on Along."

The wedding was a ringless one and the marriage was solemnized at Mr. Libberton's home instead of at the bride's residence. The bridegroom's father, the Rev. W. J. Libberton, officiated. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock at the Sacramento Boulevard M. E. church parish house in the presence of about seventy-five guests. The bride was attended by Miss Irma May. The best man was V. K. Patton.

DIE UNDER PRAYER CURE

Mother and Babe Called Victims at Zion City.

INQUIRY MAY BE HELD.

Mrs. Sweeney Attended by Woman Termed Ignorant.

An investigation may be demanded into the death of Mrs. Ethel Sweeney, 20 years old, who died in childbirth at Zion City on Tuesday morning, and whose burial is set for this afternoon.

It is charged that she was allowed to die practically unattended during the last week of her illness, and a few days before her death was taken from her residence on Elizabeth street to "Zion home" and put in charge of a woman ignorant of midwifery.

Lack of attendance, it is charged, resulted in blood poisoning. Mrs. Sweeney died, it is said, in the absence of the "nurse," who had left the room with the dead child in an attempt to "pray it back to life." The attempt was unsuccessful, and Joseph Sweeney, employed in Zion printery, is wifeless and childless.

THUGS BEAT GEORGE A. DAVIS.

Attempt to Hold up Theatrical Man When He Has Large Sum of Money.

Attacked by three Greeks at Michigan boulevard and Van Buren street late Wednesday evening, George Ade Davis, manager of the Studebaker theater, was severely beaten when he resisted the attempted holdup. Mr. Davis was carrying a considerable sum. Although armed, he was unable to draw the weapon, and attempted to fight off his assailants with his fists when he was slugged.

900 NAMES GIVEN TO GOOD FELLOWS

Safe Guess Is That Many Children Enjoyed Thanksgiving Dinners.

PLEA FOR A CRIPPLE.

Old Soldier "Who Can't Get About" Asks to Be Allowed to Help.

HURRY UP, GOOD FELLOWS.

Christmas is near. The shops are getting crowded. The happiness of 25,000 children depends on you.

Here is how you can assure it:

Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of THE TRIBUNE, something like this:

I live at No. — street. I will be Santa Claus to (any number you wish) children.

Name ....

This letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on it the names and addresses of the children. It will be returned to you. There will be no publicity. Don't wait. Only twenty-five days remain, and the Good Fellow is considerate of every one, including shop girls. Write for your list today.

Three hundred of Chicago's Good Fellows—and that's not a tithe of them—were supplied on Wednesday with the names of 900 Chicago children whose need of good fellowship is one of the bitterest things that can be said about this big city, and perhaps of modern civilization.

The names of all of these children reached all of the Good Fellows early yesterday morning at the very latest. Not a word has been heard from the front since. Quite likely nothing will be heard; the Good Fellows don't operate that way.

But people who know the Good Fellows well say that it is fair to infer that every one of those 900 children enjoyed a good Thanksgiving day dinner. It's not on the program that the Good Fellows should swing into action until Christmas day, but when you supply a Good Fellow with the name of a little boy or girl who needs a good dinner the result is not quite, but pretty nearly, as inevitable as the procession of the equinoxes. And that result is always fine and dandy for the little boy and the little girl.

Good Fellows Write "Tribune."

While the 300 Good Fellows and the 900 little boys and girls were getting together the several thousand odd other Good Fellows, actual and prospective, spent their time thinking matters over and planning luxuriously for the fine time they were going to have when the Christmas holidays began to draw near.

Some of them, in fact, couldn't wait any longer and sat down and wrote THE TRIBUNE about their ideas. One of them writes about a little girl who is crippled for life in a certain ward of a certain big hospital in Chicago and who has just been operated upon by a certain physician, whose name stands for the highest skill and efficiency in surgery. She won't have a Christmas this year unless the Good Fellows look out for her.

She now lies at the point of death [says the letter]. Her mother, a widow, is reduced to actual want from a wealthy, kind, charitable, good soul she was once.

Little ——, 12 years old, wants a doll and flowers. She is too weak to write. I appeal in confidence.

And an appeal of that kind was never made to Good Fellows in vain.

Voice from Rogers Park.

Another letter says:

Kindly send me the addresses of five children. Would like them on the North Side, as I live in Rogers Park.

And here is one from the south side:

It will give me great pleasure to see that this reaches about four children. Your work is a great blessing, not only to those who receive, but most of all to those who give. Mr. Good Fellow, I wish you many happy Christmas days.

REPENTS ELOPEMENT; AT HOME

Miss Grace Hill Telephones to Aunt to Meet Her—Admits Kidnaping Story Was a Hoax.

Miss Grace Hill, the 17 year old girl who disappeared from the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Hill, 750 Bittersweet place, last Tuesday, was found by her relative yesterday. She told her aunt and the police, who had been asked to search for her, that she had eloped with Lee Phillips, 2843 Burling street, to whom she was engaged, after an entertainment at St. Peter's church, Belden and Evanston avenues, Tuesday evening. Previously she had telephoned her aunt that she had been kidnaped by two men. Then she repented the elopement, she said, and telephoned her aunt to meet her yesterday at Belden and Lincoln avnues.

LAWYER O'BRIEN IS EJECTED

Assistant City Attorney Vents Threats in "Tribune" Office.

UNDER SCRUTINY BY MAYOR.

Charged with Offering Aid to Pair of Alleged Thieves.

W. W. O'Brien, an assistant city attorney, whose activities at the Harrison street Municipal court in behalf of two alleged pickpockets are being investigated by Mayor Harrison, called at THE TRIBUNE office yesterday. Mr. O'Brien objected to the publicity his case had been given.

He demanded the promise that THE TRIBUNE print a statement which he had written out. He refused to permit the statement to be read until the promise to print had been given. He was told that THE TRIBUNE would be glad to correct any misstatement of fact if he could show that such had been made, but that it would be impossible to comply with his peremptory demand.

O'Brien then resorted to profane and obscene language which cannot be reproduced in a newspaper. He then threatened violence.

Whereupon O'Brien was chastised and promptly kicked out of THE TRIBUNE office.

Copp Repeats His Charges.

S. A. Copp, manager of Hartwell Bros., handle manufacturers, of Chicago and Chicago Heights, yesterday reiterated his charge that O'Brien had offered him a reimbursement of $20 plus his loss if he would drop the prosecution of Edward Fay and John Ryan, alleged pickpockets.

"O'Brien did offer to reimburse me to the extent of $20 and the losses I had suffered when these men picked my pocket coming in from Chicago Heights," said Mr. Copp. "The account as printed in THE TRIBUNE was correct, and I will repeat that charge at any time. I don't care what O'Brien says. I know what he told me, and there was no doubt about the definiteness of his offer, which, of course, was refused."

Rule Forbids Outside Work.

There is an established rule in the city attorney's office that no assistant is to take outside work of any sort, much less that of defending or acting for men under city prosecution. O'Brien's contention that he is with the city attorney's office instead of the prosecuting force accordingly is of no consequence.

Corporation Counsel Sexton, instructed by Mayor Harrison to investigate O'Brien's activity, particularly the charge made by Mr. Copp, was out of the city yesterday. It is understood his investigators are at work and will report today.

NOW IT'S HIGHER PRICED BEER.

Brewers Announce Advance—Say Barley and Hops Cost More—"Can Trade" Will Suffer Most.

Brewers have raised the price of beer. It is not the casual saloon patron, however, who will be affected, but the laborers and others who buy their beer by the pail. Hereafter a "pint" will not contain as much beer as the purchaser may expect.

Beer of the poorer grade, which has been bought for $4.50 or $5 a barrel, will cost 50 cents more. The reason given by the brewers for the increase is the rise in the cost of barley, malt, and hops. They say the prices for these products have doubled within a year.

BURGLARS FIRE ON CITIZENS.

Robbers Blow Open Safe in Wilmette Store and Get $6 in Pennies for Their Pains.

Burglars broke into the general merchandise store of Hoffman Bros., Ridge and Wilmette avenues, Wilmette, yesterday morning and blew open the door of the safe. A cigar box containing $6 in pennies rewarded their efforts. Citizens aroused by the explosion attempted to capture the two robbers, but the latter escaped after firing several shots.

GIRL KIDNAPED ON WAY TO SCHOOL

Mother Notifies Police, but Day's Search Brings No Clews to Child's Fate.

HUNT MISSING HUSBAND.

Spouse, Parted from Wife, May Have Taken 7 Year Old Daughter to Joliet.

Ruth Anderson disappeared on Wednesday afternoon and relatives and the police made an all day search for her yesterday without getting a clew. Ruth is 7 years old. Mrs. Hannah Anderson, her mother, said in the evening she believed her husband had kidnaped the child. Husband and wife are separated.

Ruth, who is known as "Nana" by her schoolmates, left her mother's residence at 1151 Grand avenue at noon on Wednesday to go to the Carpenter school, which she has attended for two months. Later in the afternoon several children saw her standing in front of a saloon at Erie street and Center avenue apparently waiting for some one inside. This is the last reported seen of her.

Secure Police Aid.

"We have searched everywhere for her," the mother said at night. "We notified the West Chicago avenue police and they have had the police help us, but we can learn nothing about her. My daughter and I have seen a number of the school children, but they can't tell us anything more than that they saw her standing on the saloon corner.

"My husband, Dan, and I have been separated for two years and a part of the time she has lived with her father. I think he must have come to Chicago and taken her away with him. He has been working in Detroit. He is an automobile lamp maker. We separated because he drank so much. About a year ago he came to Chicago from Kenosha, where we used to live, and took 'Nana' to a room at Huron and Clark streets where he stayed.

Girl May Be in Joliet.

"Two of our little boys, Frank and Eddie, are in the Swedish Orphans' home at Joliet. My husband wrote to our son who lives in Kenosha a few days ago and said he was going to visit the boys at Joliet on Thanksgiving, but was not coming to Chicago. He took 'Nana' and visited the boys on the Fourth of July, and he may have come here yesterday and got her, and may be in Joliet today."

TAFT'S OWN VIEW OF HIS ENDEAVORS

Reviews Acts of Administration; Thinks on the Whole He Has Done Well.

TO EDIT WINONA TALK.

Still Believes, However, That Aldrich Tariff Law Did Revise Downward.

estimated. "My chief objection to a needlessly high tariff is that it nourishes monopoly. It holds forth a constant temptation to the formation of little trusts, which often are more directly oppressive to the consumer than big ones.

"For example, we have found local lumber markets controlled by retail lumber trusts growing out of the big trusts, which dictate prices to the wholesale trade and which draw their chief support from duties which I believe quite unnecessary for purposes of legitimate protection. And the same principle holds good everywhere you look."

Three Bills of Prime Importance.

"What of your legislative program in the regular session of the Sixty-first congress?" Mr. Leupp inquired.

"There were three measures," said the president, "before the regular session of the Sixty-first congress which I considered of prime importance: the railroad bill, the postal savings bill, and the conservation bill. On the first the insurgent opposition made some of the provisions more drastic against the railroads in lengthening the time during which the interstate commerce commission could suspend a proposed increased rate from sixty days to ten months before rendering a decision, if necessary, and also in making a change in the long and short haul clause in the interest of the interior shipper.

"They also excluded some useful limitations upon the railway companies. I had recommended that no railway company be allowed to acquire stock of a competing company, but with such provisions for resolving arrangements already existing as would avoid confiscation.

"I recommended also, in accordance with the Republican platform and Mr. Roosevelt's frequent recommendation, that competing railroads be permitted to make thirty-day agreements as to the rates they would charge between common points, from which either of the parties could recede at will.

Half Loaf Better than None.

"The insurgents insisted on throwing out both these features, because they found something in them inconsistent with the Sherman act, which in those days was regarded as the Ark of the Covenant instead of a target for attack or amendment as now. Although my proposals were progressive, I accepted a half loaf rather than no bread, and signed the bill.

"Into the postal savings bill the senate insurgents tried to inject an amendment which would have left me no escape from a veto. They wanted to 'stake down' the deposits in the neighborhoods where made, forbidding the government to remove the money except in an emergency of war. This was an intolerable proposition, because it would have greatly embarrassed the government and would have seriously interfered with its ability to meet at once its obligations. The only way it was beaten was by mustering the votes of the regulars, and then it was a close shave."

"But your conservation measure survived?"

"Yes, to my great relief, for it not only gave me the opportunity to withdraw about 70,000,000 acres of land on my own account, but validated the withdrawals already made, which, if carried into court, might have kept us in suspense for a long period."

Tributes to His Boards.

Mr. Taft then paid a tribute to his commission on the second rate postage question, to the tariff board, and to his economy commission.

"And speaking of economy," he continued, "reminds me of what we have accomplished even without the aid of any court. On entering office I warned every cabinet member and bureau chief that I should hold him individualy responsible for cutting to the bone the expenditures under his control. On July 1, 1909, we faced a deficit of $56,000,000; July 1, 1910, saw that changed to a surplus of $14,000,000; and by July 1, 1911, the surplus had risen to $47,000,000."

Proud of Corporation Tax Act.

After explaining the intricate negotiations with congress preliminary to securing this corporation tax, Mr. Taft said:

"I am proud of having taken such a part in securing the corporation tax. It has proved in some respects a most valuable fiscal asset. At 1 per cent it raises $28,000,000 a year; and if we need $56,000,000 or $84,000,000 in an emergency, all we shall have to do is to increase the tax to 2 or 3 per cent.

"Being taken out of the net profits before dividends are declared, it is least felt by the persons on whom it ultimately falls. As there must be a surplus of income over expenditure before the tax applies, it taxes success and not failure. It costs next to nothing to collect—scarcely more than the expense to the government of carrying a few letters back and forth.

"Finally, it is a means of keeping the government always in touch with the corporations all over the country, which have to furnish us with statistics that may be made useful for many other purposes than those of taxation."

Favors General Income Tax.

"Now that you have launched your project for a constitutional amendment, you probably have in mind some particular form of general income tax to recommend to congress when it is free to act?"

"In a way, yes. I believe on principle in a general income tax. The only good arguments against it are that it is inquisitorial, and that it offers a temptation to perjury. But I would not resort to the ordinary income tax except in an emergency like war, when I would have it graduated, so that those citizens who had most at stake should bear a correspondingly large share of the burden of the common defense. In time of peace I would avoid temptation to perjury, and would confine the government to taxes that do not involve such inquisitorial methods in their collection."

Refers to Aid to Workers.

"Do you account the matters you have mentioned as the chief milestones of progress during your administration?"

"Those which stand out most prominently, rather. There are others. We have procured legislation of great value to workingmen, affecting the liability of employers in cases of injury to their help, strengthening the law relative to safety appliances on railroads, and authorizing a workmen's compensation commission. I cannot at the moment recall all, but they are easily ascertainable.

"I look with especial pride on the consummation of our treaty with Japan, due chiefly to the skill and acute mind of Knox, for I feared it might fail on account of the popular prejudice against the Japanese on the Pacific coast, which might lead to a misunderstanding of its provisions. Fortunately, the treaty came along just when the bill for the world's fair at San Francisco was under way, and rode in on the same wave."

Reformed Court Procedure.

"There is another item which might not appeal to you strongly, but by which, with my experience at the bar and on the bench, I set much store. I refer to my message to congress in which I urged reformed court procedure to secure quick decision and reduced expense of litigation, and pointed out that the Supreme court might lead the way under its statutory power to revise the rules of the federal courts of equity, which had been changed but little in a hundred years.'

"Now that you mention the Supreme court, Mr. President, I suppose you have noticed Mr. Bryan's comments on your appointment of Chief Justice White?"

"All I have to say about my judicial appointments is that I have regarded my duty in respect to them as the most sacred with which I am charged, and that I have spared no effort to secure for the Supreme court and other courts the best men I could get, with the fullest appreciation of the fact that the federal courts, and especially the Supreme court, constitute the chief bulwark of the institutions of civil liberty created by the constitution."

His Work for the Future.

"Now, Mr. President, something of the future. What do you purpose treating as your 'calendar of unfinished business' for the rest of your term?"

"In the domestic field, I suppose reductions in the woolen and cotton schedules, and possibly in the metal schedule of the tariff, will go to the top of the calendar. These will be founded, as far as my recommendations are concerned, on the report of the tariff board. I have heard it insinuated that congress will not heed the suggestions of an executive board. As to that I have no means of judging in advance.

"What I shall do is to put the whole thing up to congress and leave the members to settle with their constituents if they prefer not to act. In the house the Democratic majority have always professed themselves ready to accept any reductions they can get, and I am going to take them at their word in good faith. Where the insurgents will stand I am not prophet enough even to surmise.

Alaska and the Peace Treaties.

"For another thing, we ought to obtain some legislation which will enable Alaska to develop without infringing on our broad policy of conservation. Then there is the question of ratifying the peace treaties with England and France and the fiscal treaties with Honduras and Nicaragua, which in their way are peace treaties also, as their purpose is to remove one of the most prolific causes of war."

Concentration of Troops.

"Before we leave the subject of foreign relations, have you ever published your reasons for concentrating troops on the Mexican border last spring?"

"Not formally, perhaps, but I did take the precaution to put into the records a letter I wrote to Gen. Leonard Wood within a few days after I gave the order congratulating him on the way the affair was handled. In that I had sketched the story of its origin.

"The whole thing was done between two days. Congress was in recess and Knox was out of town. I had no one to counsel with on foreign matters. Disquieting rumors from Mexico were reaching me, and, as Mr. Wilson, our ambassador, who had been called north by the illness of his mother, came to see me and revealed his fears in full, I became convinced that the rebellion was much more serious than we had suspected, and that, no matter how it might end, for the time being a good many Americans in Mexico were in danger.

Duty Seemed Clear.

"It seemed to me my duty was clear. Under all the conditions it was quite within my province as commander in chief to order the army out for maneuvers, so I put that face upon it and ordered 15,000 troops to the southern frontier. Simultaneously I took care to assure the Mexican authorities that the move had no significance which could be tortured into hostility to the government of Mexico. I also forbade our own officers to permit the slightest thing to be done by their men which would bear such a construction.

"The action was a complete success. A few Americans in Mexico suffered at the hands of bandits, and enough shots were fired into our territory to have incited a hotheaded commander to retaliate, but nothing of the sort took place. Officers and men obeyed orders explicitly, and, in spite of occasional provocation, the border was never crossed by American soldiers."

Reciprocity Result Disappointing.

Mr. Taft here expressed his sense of disappointment over the failure of reciprocity with Canada, pointing out that he saw no objection himself to "entire free trade between the two countries that lie for 4,000 miles with a common border, and in which the conditions of labor, material, soil, and resources are so much the same."

"I assume that you know that it has been widely hinted that your tour was the opening of your campaign for reëlection?" the interviewer asked.

"Certainly, as is the case with all administrations," said Mr. Taft, "much of what I have done since I have been in office has had some political color put upon it by those who were inclined to be critical. The truth is, however, that political considerations have not weighed heavily with me. I have tried to do in each case what seemed to me the wisest thing, regardless of its effect upon my own future.

"All in a Day's Work."

"Indeed, in more than one instance I have been perfectly conscious whose bad blood would be stirred by some act of mine or some refusal to act. The circumstance that the same persons who hail me, after one application of equal justice, as a far seeing conservative patriot, denounce me after the next as an unreasoning radical, does not greatly disturb my equanimity. I set that down as 'all in a day's work.'

"I am very grateful for the honors the people have given me. I do not affect to deny the satisfaction I should feel if, after casting up the totals pro and con, and striking a balance, they should decide that my first term had been fruitful enough of good to warrant their enlisting me for another. Any man would be proud of such a verdict. But I have not been willing, nor shall I be, to purchase it at the sacrifice of my freedom to do my duty as I see it.

"My happiness is not dependent on holding any office; and I shall go back to private life with no heartburnings if the people, after an unprejudiced review of my administration conclude that some one else can serve them to their greater advantage."

FINAL CEREMONY MAKES CARDINALS

PAGEANT RICH IN COLOR.

Thousands of Persons, Including Many Americans, Witness Imposing Rite.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, Nov. 30.—St. Peter's square by o'clock this morning was filled by a vast owd waiting for the opening of the bronze oors of the beatification hall to witness e bestowal of red hats on eighteen new ardinals. There were nuns, monks, stuents of foreign colleges, and hosts of others. merican and English students in their lack cassocks, Germans in red, Scots in urple; a typical Roman crowd, a familiar ight at papal functions.

The Basilica hall was hung with tapestries of damask, representing the triumph of the church in spiritual and temporal power. The papal throne was covered with rich red damask. There were long benches on either side behind which were five tribunes respectively of diplomats, Roman nobility, knights of St. John and Malta, and members of the royal family. The last two were occupied by friends of the newly elevated cardinals.

Close of the Ceremony.

As the pope gave to each the red hat he said in Latin:

"Receive for the glory of Almighty God and the adornment of the holy apostolic see this red hat as the sign of the unequaled dignity of the cardinalate, whereby it is declared that, even to death by the shedding of thy blood, thou shouldst show thyself intrepid for the exaltation of the blessed faith, the peace and tranquillity of the Christian people, and increase the prosperity of the Holy Roman church in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. Amen."

When each had received his hat and ring the pope embraced each of the cardinals and then blessed the multitude. He was then borne to his apartments, while the trumpets fanfared and the choir burst forth in song. The cardinals retired to the Sistine chapel for the "Te Deum."

Praise for American Catholics.

Mgr. Caccia, the master of the pope's wardrobe, who brought their red hats to the cardinals, made an address in which he dwelt on the merits of Cardinal Falconio, to whom he referred as a follower of the poor man of Assisi, St. Francis, the founder of the Franciscans, and also on the fine qualities of "those two eminent metropolitans, Cardinals Farley and O'Connell, who have contributed to the wonderful development of Catholicism in America, an achievement which the pope so highly appreciates."

Cardinal Falconio replied on behalf of himself and his colleagues, who cardinalization, he said, had proved the love of his holiness for America. In that country Cardinal Falconio said he had learned to admire the wonderful constitution which, besides respecting, encourages religious sentiments in the people, thereby contributing to the welfare of the country. The freedom of America, Cardinal Falconio said, made possible the wonderful development of Catholicism under the seal of the bishops, the clergy, and the people.

After the consistory Cardinal Farley, who was evidently under deep emotion, said:

"This is doubly Thanksgiving day when my city is so highly honored." Referring to the pope's affection for American Catholics, Cardinal Farley said: "I feel sure the members of the church in America will henceforth be more devoted to the cause of truth and righteousness and everything that goes to the making of good citizenship. They will consider themselves what the pope expects all catholics to be, exemplars of all the civic virtues."

The Osservatore Romano, the organ of the vatican, announces that the pope has assigned Cardinal Falconio to the religious propaganda, Cardinal Farley to the consistorial propaganda, and Cardinal O'Connell to the council of studies.

REBELS NEARER NANKING VICTORY

Last Position of Imperialists on Purple Hill Captured by Revolutionists.

YUAN SEEKS THRONE?

Reports in Peking Premier Plans to Get Regency, if Not Imperial Seat.

NANKING, Dec. 1.—The last position of the imperial troops on Purple Hill has been captured by the revolutionists.

Yuan Seeks the Throne?

PEKING, Nov. 30.—Reports are seriously circulated here that Yuan Shi Kai, the premier, intends to assume the regency, if not the throne.

Friends of the premier, fearing his assassination by either Manchus or Chinese, recently solicited several of the foreign legations to take measures to protect him. The legations, through the dean of the diplomatic corps, intimated their willingness to acquiesce.

William J. Calhoun, the American minister, is continuing his endeavors to induce Americans in the interior to come to places where foreign protection can be afforded them.

The Franco-Belgian loan of $30,000,000, which was negotiated by the Japanese Baron Cottu, was approved, as also was the contract in conjunction with the loan for a bridge across the Yangtse river between Hankow and Wu-Chang. The sum of $8,400,000, to be delivered to the government through the Russian and Belgian banks here, will be forthcoming immediately.

There has been a significant movement of troops in and out of Peking, Manchus departing and Chinese taking their places. It is reliably reported that by reason of these changes the garrison now is almost equally balanced between Manchu and Chinese troops.

HEAR OF TURKISH CRUELTY.

Washington Embassy Gets Dispatch Describing Atrocities.

PERIM, Red Sea, Nov. 30.—News has been received here that an Italian warship is bombarding Fort Sheik Said, on the Arabian coast. The fortified seaport of Mocha, in the province of the Yamen on the Red sea, was bombarded this morning by Italian warships. No details are available.

Hear of Turk Atrocities.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—Stories of almost incredible barbarities practiced by Arabs and Turks are contained in dispatches received at the Italian embassy here. In a dispatch received today from Rome, the Italian minister of foreign affairs describes alleged atrocities practiced on the Italian wounded, which include crucifixion and burial alive. Women, it is said, take part in the perpetration of these cruelties.

The dispatch, which is signed by Sig. San Guiliano, minister of foreign affairs, follows:

"Near the mosque of Hani, where a medical post had been located, and its vicinity, twenty-eight bodies of our soldiers were found. They were horribly mutilated, crucified, with their throats cut open, impaled, torn to pieces, and dismembered.

Men Are Buried Alive.

"In the Arab cemetery seven bodies of Bersaglieri were discovered. They had been interred alive, with the heads out of the earth. The body of one of these shows that he had been tortured.

"A captain's cap has been found; its owner was identified by Corporal Pasqui, who escaped miraculously after remaining over four hours in a ditch. He testifies that among the ferocious ill treating hordes were Turks and women. The military engineering corps took photographs.

Police Aid in Cruelty.

"It is reported on Wednesday night in the Arab cemetery in the interior of the city the body of an Italian gunner was found with many dagger wounds. The murderers were many and among them there was a local policeman, who now is under arrest. From other sources it is reported that the murder was committed by the officer, with the passive assistance of other policemen, who concealed the crime."

MRS. PATTERSON FOR STAGE; WANTS TO FORGET STROUSS.

Woman Acquitted on the Charge of Murdering Husband Will Try to See Belasco or Frohman.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gertrude Patterson, acquitted yesterday of the murder of her husband, says she is going on the stage. She said today:

"I'm going on the stage."

"Vaudeville?"

"No, Belasco," she replied. "Here is my plan. After my rest with dad, I'm going straight to New York and try to get an audience with David Belasco or Charles Frohman.

"As to Emil Strouss, I never want to hear of him again.

Mrs. Mary K. Patterson is on a Rock Island train speeding back to Chicago.

"The time has come," said the mother of Gertrude Patterson's victim today, "when, if the law will not avenge a killing in cold blood, it seems to be up to the relatives of the slain one to mete a like fate to the slayer."

PERSIANS SCORN RUSSIAN DEMAND

Parliament Votes to Refuse Compliance; People, Excited, March in Streets.

FIND BOMB FOR SHUSTER.

British Press Blames American Treasurer General for Crisis at Teheran.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Dec. 1, 3 a. m.—A dispatch from Teheran to the Times says the mejliss, or Persian parliament, today unanimously decided to refuse to comply with the demands in Russia's latest ultimatum.

The people are carrying on an excited demonstration in the streets and insisting that the demands be rejected. The army society, Dasnaktchioun, has offered its services to the governmen' to resist the Russians. The exshah is reported to be on the way to join the Russian troops in the province of Ghilan.

The police searched a house and seized a number of bombs which the occupants of the place confessed were intended for the assassination of W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer general of Persia.

It has now been revealed that there was a conspiracy against Mr. Shuster's life last July. The agent of the conspirators made an affidavit that M. Paroff, the Russian vice consul, instigated him to shoot Mr Shuster. The facts have been suppressed at the request of Mr. Shuster.

British Press Slams Shuster.

The crisis in Persia displaces interest in other foreign crises and is creating among other things a fear of the disturbance of the agreement of 1907 which harmonized the long standing and somewhat dangerous clash of interests of Russia and Great Britain and which consequently was received with general relief in this country.

This fear overshadows to a great extent the question of Persia's independence. which is probably much more seriously menaced. The latter, however, is not wholly overlooked and the radical press points out that if the latest Russian ultimatum is complied with Great Britain will be helping to compass the ruin of Persia's freedom.

A third danger is the coterminous frontier of Russia and England.

Shuster Blamed in Editorials.

Noteworthy editorials of all shades today lay a large part of the blame for the trouble on W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer general. All recognize his ability and well intentioned zeal but complain that he has allowed his zeal to outrun his discretion and has failed to recognize the Russo-British agreement.

His persistence in appointing Englishmen, one of whom is notoriously anti-Russian, to posts within the Russian sphere of influence, notwithstanding the disapproval of the British, was one of the points Sir Edward Grey made against him in the house of commons, and is emphatically condemned by the press.

Russia's objections to this appointment are regarded as natural and justifiable, and it is asked what would have been the British attitude if it had happened that Mr. Shuster had appointed a Russian in the British sphere.

The view widely held here is that, however well intentioned Mr. Shuster may have been, he has mixed up finance and politics and has allowed the Persian politicians to exploit him for the purpose of promoting the hopeless design of freeing northern Persia from Russian control.

Government Kills 470 Amendments in Report Stage of the Insurance Bill.

LIVELY CLASH IN HOUSE.

Opposition Leaves Chamber in a Body, Followed by Derisive Cheers.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—There was a remarkable scene in the house of commons tonight when the government killed 470 amendments in the report stage of the insurance bill.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, heatedly accused the ministers of acting in obedience to the Redmonites in order to clear the road for home rule in Ireland.

David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, as hotly replied that the government was only following the example set by the Unionist governments.

The excitement was intense and the members faced the prospect of a division on each amendment when, on the speaker putting the first amendment, the entire opposition rose and made a dramatic exit from the chamber, pursued by derisive ministerial cheering.

The entire 470 amendments which were introduced by the government then were adopted and in only a single case was the division challenged by the laborites. This concluded part 1 of the bill. The remaining parts will be guillotined tomorrow.

Fire Gong Causes Child's Injury.

He was thrown to the street and suffered a cut over his right temple and possibly a slight fracture of the skull.

GAS EXPLOSION IN RESIDENCE KILLS TWO AND HURTS FOUR.

Illinoisan Escapes Fate of Family by Going Hunting After Thanksgiving Dinner.

Mattoon, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Shortly after the family had finished Thanksgiving dinner today, an acetylene gas generator blew up in the basement of the residence of J. M. Henton, eight miles northwest of Mattoon, killed his aunt, Mrs. Rachel Dearhart, aged 70, and his daughter Evelyn, aged 6, and seriously injured his wife and three other children.

Mr. Henton after dinner went hunting and damaged by the explosion, which was so terrific that it shattered glass in almost every house for a radius of five miles.

Neighbors soon arrived and the work of rescue began, but such was the confusion wrought by the exploisition that it was two hours before the bodies and the injured persons had been taken from the wreckage.

How to Thoroughly Groom Your Complexion

We spank little children when they won't have their faces washed; while 90 out of every hundred grown-ups fail almost daily to wash their faces properly. We were all born with good complexions, but because we haven't taken care of them, the pores accumulate germs, dirt and cuticle parasites, and hinder the natural efficiency of the skin to perform its function. From this sluggish state, more serious ills result, such as pimples, liver spots, sallowness, etc. A genuine specific is necessary and it is useless to potter about with massage creams or lotions. The best specific that we known of is pure coleated balsam. Its effect upon the cuticle is almost electrical while at the same time it is perfectly harmless and natural. It simply clears the complexion. Get an ounce and a half of your druggist and use it instead of cold creams or lotions. It will restore your complexion to the beautiful texture and tint of childhood, and your skin will be without a blemish and glowing with health and youth.—Advt.

WHAT DOES YOUR COMPETITOR PAY?

It is of vital importance to every merchant to know that he is buying his merchandise at prices that are at least as low as those paid by his competitors, and that he is able to sell at no higher cost.

Perhaps you have a competitor who occupies the same size and character of store space (rented from the same landlord); who buys the same kind of merchandise from the same manufacturers and in the same amounts; who employs the same number and grade of salespeople; who advertises to the same amount in the same papers; who, in fact, does exactly the same kind of business as you do.

Where would you end up in competition with him if, by reason of a pull with your common landlord, he paid less rent than was required of you; if he got a discount off his merchandise of 25% against your 10%; if his salespeople were willing to work for 10% less than you pay yours; if the newspapers would take his advertising at 33⅓% less than they made you pay?

The Tribune does not know what you and your competitor pay your landlord, nor what you pay for your merchandise, nor what your salespeople cost you, nor what you pay other newspapers for advertising space.

The Tribune does know what you and your competitor pay for advertising in The Tribune.

Herewith appears the schedule of display advertising rates in The Tribune, as printed in its public rate card on page 7. There are also special display rates for Amusements, Publishers (except newspapers), Reading Notices, Color Work, Schools and Resorts. These special rates are printed on pages 9 and 10 of The Tribune's public rate card.

THERE IS NOT ONE LINE OF DISPLAY ADVERTISING IN THE TRIBUNE AT ANY RATE LOWER THAN THOSE PRINTED IN THE TRIBUNE'S PUBLIC RATE CARD. YOUR COMPETITOR CANNOT BUY AT LOWER RATES THAN YOU PAY FOR AN EQUAL AMOUNT OF SPACE.

If you want to know how much your competitor pays for advertising in The Tribune, measure the number of lines he uses in a year, consult your copy of The Tribune's rate card and find the rate per line for that amount of space. You can be absolutely sure that this is the rate he pays. The Tribune's guarantee is back of its public rate card. Just read this guarantee once more:

THERE IS NOT ONE LINE OF DISPLAY ADVERTISING IN THE TRIBUNE AT ANY RATE LOWER THAN THOSE PRINTED IN THE TRIBUNE'S PUBLIC RATE CARD. YOUR COMPETITOR CANNOT BUY AT LOWER RATES THAN YOU PAY FOR AN EQUAL AMOUNT OF SPACE.

The Tribune believes in the principles of common fairness and does not stand for a policy under which one advertiser is obliged to pay more for his advertising than is required of another for exactly the same kind and amount of service. Unfair discrimination of this kind enables one merchant to profit at the expense of another and lends a bias to competition which it is improper for a daily paper to furnish.

The following are some of the things that The Tribune's Square Deal Policy does not stand for:

1. Leaving advertising rates to the discretion of solicitors to charge "what the traffic will bear."
2. Selling space to advertisers outside the loop at a lower rate than asked of those inside the loop.
3. Giving "next reading" and other special positions to favored customers without extra charge, and making others pay for them.
4. Making price and other concessions to new advertisers in order to secure their patronage while old customers pay full rates.
5. Increasing rates to some advertisers and allowing others to continue at old rates for two years.
6. Offering special low rates to advertisers in return for as much space as some other paper gets, and then allowing the same rate concessions to other advertisers without this condition of space.

When you buy advertising space in The Tribune, remember that you have The Tribune's guarantee:

THERE IS NOT ONE LINE OF DISPLAY ADVERTISING IN THE TRIBUNE AT ANY RATE LOWER THAN THOSE PRINTED IN THE TRIBUNE'S PUBLIC RATE CARD. YOUR COMPETITOR CANNOT BUY AT LOWER RATES THAN YOU PAY FOR AN EQUAL AMOUNT OF SPACE.

For the month of November The Tribune printed 999,966 lines of paid advertising, which was 310,296 lines more than was printed by the next morning paper and 177,048 lines more than by the first evening paper. In the first eleven months of this year The Tribune has printed 11,432,224 lines of paid advertising, which is an excess of 4,725,781 lines over the next morning paper and 2,989,375 lines over the first evening paper.

These statistics are prepared by the Washington Press, an independent audit company whose sole business is to measure, certify and furnish to its subscribers the advertising figures of all Chicago papers.

A CHECK NEEDED.

Peter Bartzen's administration of the county affairs begins to rebuke the tolerance of the city. He is pushing things to such a pass that it will be necessary for a taxpayer to ask the courts to intervene.

Bartzen and the members of the county board who support him have direction of the expenditure of $3,000,000 authorized to be spent in the building of a new hospital. THE TRIBUNE has disclosed where some of this money is going. The Evening Post adds to the disclosures.

To what limits Bartzen will carry his methods of using this fund if he is not checked cannot be foreseen because he is Bartzen.

It may be necessary to resort to the courts.

WHAT THEY FEARED.

Speaker Champ Clark says that nothing ever was further from his mind than an idea of annexing Canada against the will of the Canadians. His hope was that the two young people, being such close neighbors, might learn to care for one another and the union would result "with mutual consent."

"But," he adds, "as the Canadians do not seem to want it, there's the end of it."

This explanation still leaves much to convict Mr. Clark of fatuity. A shrewd statesman would have known that Canada did not fear our menaces, but our blandishments. The chilly spinster locked the door because Mr. Clark warned her that a handsome young man was hanging around the place.

ON WHAT DUTY?

The Army and Navy Register comments upon two recent orders of the war department by which Maj. Beecher B. Ray is ordered from Atlanta, Ga., first to New York and then by amended order to Chicago. It is declared that this is a manifestation of favoritism, and the incident is declared to warrant an emphatic protest "whether Maj. Ray is sent to Chicago as a reward for past political activities, attributed to him by his friends, or because he is sent to Chicago in anticipation of the further useful employment of his services in the approaching presidential campaign."

It is to be hoped this incident will be cleared of political significance, but if memory serves Maj. Ray's activities have come in for sharp discussion before on this ground. The Army and Navy Register is quite right in declaring that officers have a right to expect the administration will keep politics out of the service, and the public will sympathize with its pungent remarks that "the officer who attends to his duties and performs his allotted task without attracting much attention to himself or asking favors gets very little comfort out of a situation revealed by the favoritism manifested in the orders quoted."

FOR CITIZENS TO THINK ABOUT.

A suggestive hint of the workings of "practical politics," as developed in our great American cities, is offered the Tired Business Man and others by the charge made against one of our assistant city attorneys.

This official, who is a member of the bar, of course, and draws salary from the city funds, nominally at least, as compensation for assisting in the enforcement of the law, is alleged to have appeared in court to defend two men charged with theft and to have attempted later to induce the prosecuting witness to compound the offense.

This serious charge may be unfounded, and it is to be hoped it is. But it should be pressed in good faith until the facts are ascertained as fully and certainly as possible. If they are as alleged they offer another interesting illustration of the interrelation of criminal administration and criminals. How a certain kind of influence is acquired and exerted, how practical politics thrusts its roots for sustenance down into the nightsoil of great cities is only dimly realized by "good" citizens. The police investigation, if it is read intelligently, will educate the community to a better knowledge of the forces of misrule. And this new incident is also a footnote worthy of attention.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE SHIP.

The Christmas tree ship has slipped up to its dock in the river with its cargo of spruce, its cheering aliens of smiling green. Presumably there are mortals who have seen the bridges swing to let the Christmas ship in, but the most that is known of it is that folk coming down town find it tied up at its wharf, with Christmas trees sticking their tops curiously out of hatchways, and suspect that Kris Kringle was at the wheel when it came in.

There is magic in the spruce. It might be a gray Monday, with dark skies and damp circumstances, with monotonous routine compelling and laggard feet obeying, but a sullen day has no defense against the alien spruce sailing out of the north and into the river.

Suddenly the dull sky promises snow flurries. There is a bit of wind to whistle comfortably about the house. There is a confusion of laughing, shrieking children. There is smiling comfort and the odor of something wonderful roasting in the oven. There is good nature and good cheer and ecstatic happiness—four walls inclosing content and serenity—and then the street car slides down the incline into South Water street, where the odor is not of spruce or roasts, and where the confusion is not of joyous children, but the illusion is good, and it endures at least to Lake street.

STAMPEDING THE JURY.

In the Patterson murder trial the chief counsel for the prosecution began his address to the jury as follows:

> A Fool there was, and he made his prayer
> (Even as you and I)
> To a rag and a bone and a hank of hair
> (We called her the woman who did not care),
> But the fool he called her his lady fair.

"So she shot him in the back," interpolated Mr. Benson.

> Consider her your daughter, just budding into womanhood. Isn't it a travesty upon men, bathed in the image of the Great Father, that there never bloomed a lily so fair that there was not a heel to crush it?

Now criticism directed solely at these two attorneys would be unjust. They were only making use of the license permitted under our system of legal forensics. It is the system that is wrong.

The purpose of a criminal trial is presumed to be the ascertainment of the fact of guilt or innocence under the law. Yet the very widest latitude is permitted in argument, so that, after the most cautious and minute process of preventing prejudice in the selection of jurors and the most drastic process of presenting testimony in order to prevent irrelevant facts and considerations to enter the minds of the jury, all this elaborately safeguarded structure is thrust into a whirling phantasmagoria of rhetoric, melodramatics, histrionic appeals to passion, prejudice, and overwrought sentiment. Counsel are permitted personal recriminations, innuendoes, and sneers which involve themselves, their characters, and their methods in the main question of the defendant's guilt, and out of this roaring storm the jury is expected to stand firm, cool, unbiased, to hold with a steady hand the delicate scales of justice! All the disinterested assistance they receive is in the form of certain so-called "instructions," which are statements in law English, involved and technical, of the legal principles they must obey. These are contrived not by the court but by the battling attorneys, chiefly the attorney for the defense, whose object is not so much to enlighten the jury as to trick the judge into a technical error from which, under our technical system, reversal may be hoped.

It is high evidence of the innate good sense and right feeling of the average man serving on juries that justice is served as well as it is. But a system so plainly defective is sure to produce much preventable evil, and ought to be amended in the light of reason.

Among lawyers and judges who have considered remedies for the defects of our legal procedure the strongly preponderant opinion favors strengthening and enlarging the function of the judge. At present the forensic mêlée of the attorneys goes on unchecked to almost any excess because the judge's hands are tied. Procedural reformers say he should be allowed more freely to control debate and should be privileged to comment, as the English judges do, upon the evidence.

There ought to be public spirit enough in the legal profession to correct the most glaring faults of our peculiar American system. But the legal profession is proverbially "conservative," and its progress is very slow.

THE FISHER REPORT APPROVED.

Mr. Louis Brandeis, counsel for the house committee on interior department expenditures, has called the Controller bay investigation off. Mr. Brandeis is a conservation champion, and his decision virtually is an indorsement of the report and findings of Secretary of the Interior Fisher, who is as sincere a conservationist as Mr. Brandeis. Their agreement will assure the friends of conservation that Alaska, as now safeguarded, will not be exploited.

Neither Mr. Fisher nor Mr. Brandeis is a "visionary," as a certain type of western prominent citizen is fond of calling the conservation enthusiast, and both represent the sane forward party which desires, along with the protection of the public rights and the rational conservation of our natural resources, a prompt and wholesome development of those resources.

The forward policy of Secretary Fisher will appeal to the American people so long as it is forward in the public interest, as seems to be the case.

HOT WATER AND STEAM HEATING

THE great advantages of these types of heating are efficiency and economy, and yet there are disadvantages. It is possible to heat well with these methods and have no ventilation at all.

Our ideas of heating and ventilation have been inherited from the old days of fireplace heating. In those days the heating of a room by an open fire started currents of incoming air which, without planning for it, gave a moderate amount of ventilation. The more loosely the house was constructed the better the involuntary ventilation. We are prone to carry over our ideas of heating and ventilation into our modern quarters.

Heating with steam and hot water can be done without any ventilation, and the more ventilating done the more expensive heating becomes. In fact, speaking broadly, in our modern, closely built houses heating is needed to heat the air for ventilation, the outside walls and the windows. The occupants make more than enough heat to heat themselves, the inside walls, floors, and ceilings. Therefore the temptation always is to reduce the size and number of windows, to cut down the outside wall space and especially to limit the air taken in.

Until better ventilation practices prevail these should be held as legitimate arguments against steam and hot water heating. This is doubly true since heating engineers and manufacturers of heating apparatus have so signally failed to do their duty toward the ventilating side—for in trade and professional parlance, "heating and ventilating" are coupled.

Another disadvantage of heating by these methods is that the air is too dry. This can be remedied by allowing steam to escape from the radiators into the dry air. It can be accomplished less well with steam or with hot water by using the radiators as evaporators.

A great advantage of these methods is that they allow the heat to be radiated at those places in the rooms where it is needed, that is, near the windows and otherwise along the cold walls.

Another point which, with a little planning, could always be taken advantage of is that the ventilation air could be introduced into the room as moderately warmed air. This is especially necessary if the room is to be occupied to its full capacity.

MEANING OF "ROUGHENING."

C. T. writes: "In the issue of Nov. 18 you describe certain food elements as 'roughening.' My dictionaries fail to define this term as here employed. Please enlighten me. Again you ascribe to 'breakfast food' a value extremely low. If your table refers to breakfast foods as a whole, surely your figures are incorrect. If to a particular kind or brand please name it."

REPLY.

Roughening is used in the same sense as stock feeders use it when referring to hay, fodder, and similar foods. I have in mind foods consisting mainly of woody and other rough fiber given to make bulk, and in that way do good. The quotation is from bulletin 142, department of agriculture. I do not know what food was analyzed. They do vary in composition. One at least has 20 per cent protein.

ABJURE TIGHT COLLARS.

Karl de Schweinitz, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, has this to say regarding collars:

"How often have you taken off your collar at night to find that it has marked your neck with ugly red lines? Don't allow it to happen again. Tight collars frequently press upon the arteries and obstruct the return of blood from the veins in the head. Dizziness and headaches follow. Remember also that just because the weather happens to be cool is no reason why you should bundle up your neck and throat. Too warm dressing makes one sensitive to every change of weather. The secret of keeping well is to harden your system. Accustom your throat to the cold and you need not undergo the discomfort of heavy scarfs and turned up overcoat collars. One way to strengthen the throat is every morning to dash cold water upon the neck and chest with a sponge or wash rag. This will soon harden your throat to the cold. At all events, if not for the sake of health, at least for comfort, don't wear tight collars."

LET BABY SLEEP OUT OF DOORS.

C. C. K. writes: "My baby was born in May and has been out of doors every day during the summer and fall, except when it has rained. Is it advisable to let him have his daily nap out of doors during the winter?"

REPLY.

It is. Babies six months old are good heat makers and should have lots of exposure to cold. The ability to catch cold from exposure to cold, from cold feet, wet feet, et cetera, is acquired as the result of coddling. It is frequently found in adults. It is seldom found in babies. It, of itself, is an abnormality.

SEE A PHYSICIAN.

C. D. F. writes: "What causes catarrh, and is there no cure for it? Do you think the advertised patent medicines for catarrh safe?"

REPLY.

There is no such disease as catarrh. The advertised remedies are useless at best. Many are harmful. Have a physician find out just what is the disease in a case of so-called catarrh. Most of them are curable. Some are the effects of neglected conditions. These generally cannot be remedied.

RINGING IN THE EARS.

P. E. G. writes: "What causes and what is the best remedy for the singing, roaring sounds in the ears of so many Chicago people? I am asked so often to talk a little louder. I know people who have paid large sums of money to specialists, with no good results. Would mullein oil, Haarlem oil, or any of the oils be of benefit, or warm water forced in with a few drops of glycerin?"

REPLY.

The ringing in the ears and the deafness which develops in middle age are the results of the neglect of throats and noses in youth. Generally nothing can be done and those inconvenienced go from specialist to specialist, trying to get some help. Haarlem oil, mullein oil, and remedies of that type will do no good at all. Occasionally a sufferer will find some relief from surgical or mechanical procedure, but the best the average person can do is to content herself as best she can, resolving that she will not allow her children to suffer from the same neglect.

The next generation will have much less deafness than ours, even though the dinning of continued noises is making hearing generally less acute.

We shall write about colds more than once before the winter is over.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright, 1911: By the Brentwood Company.]

KING FERDINAND of Bulgaria has lately become involved in a disagreeable affair which has created much bad blood against him, not only among his subjects but also among several of the reigning houses of Europe.

It may be recalled that his predecessor on the throne at Sofia, Prince Alexander of Battenberg, left a son and a daughter by his marriage with the Darmstadt actress, Johanna Loisinger, whom he wedded in such an extraordinary fashion on the eve of the date appointed for his wedding at Windsor castle to the kaiser's sister, Victoria of Prussia, now the wife of Prince Adolf of Schaumburg-Lippe.

This son, who bears the Christian name of Assen, attained his majority in January and bears the title of Count Hartenau, which his father secured from the late Grand Duke of Hesse when he abandoned the style and name of Prince of Battenberg on marrying Mlle. Loisinger, whose parents were the valet and cook of a dear old general on the retired list of the Austrian army making his home at Pressburg, where she was born.

Whereas King Ferdinand, in spite of all that he has done for Bulgaria by means of statecraft, by cleverness of administration, and by vast sacrifices of his own personal fortune and that of his mother, the late Princess Clementine of Coburg, has never been able, in his near quarter of a century of reign, to secure any hold on the affections of his subjects, who alternately ridicule his foibles or denounce his policies, the memory of Prince Alexander of Battenberg, who died as Count Hartenau and as major general in command of the Eleventh Infantry brigade of the Austrian army at Gratz, is still cherished in the hearts of the Bulgarian people, who can never forget that he not only fought for their liberation from Turkey, in the ranks of the Russian army in 1877, but that he also reigned over them for the first eight years of their independence and in 1885 led their army to brilliant victory in the battle of Slivnitza and in the subsequent engagements near the Dragoman and Zaribrod passes, inflicting overwhelming defeat upon the Servians and forcing King Milan to flight.

The Bulgarians all know, too, that if Russia forced him to abdicate it was because he had resented Muscovite interference in the administration of Bulgaria, as calculated to impair its independence; and one of the first things which the members of the sobranje at Sofia did, after the election of Prince Ferdinand of Coburg to the throne, was to vote unanimously an annuity of $10,000 a year for life to their former ruler.

Since young Count Assen Hartenau has grown up to be a handsome man, with a good deal of resemblance to his father, who was one of the finest looking men of his time, he has been the object of all sorts of intrigues on the part of the malcontents in Bulgaria, bent on putting him forward as a pretender to his father's throne. King Ferdinand endeavored to nip these schemes by granting the lad a commission in the Bulgarian army and by endeavoring to attach him to his family through ties of gratitude.

The young count, though, seems to have permitted his head to be turned by the demonstrations of affection with which he was welcomed everywhere in Bulgaria as the only son of his father. He allowed himself to be hailed not as Count Hartenau, but as "Prince Assen of Battenberg," and even as "Prince Assen of Bulgaria," to neither of which titles he has, of course, any vestige of a right. Finally he became so deeply involved in the intrigues of the foes of the king and of his dynasty that Ferdinand found it necessary not merely to deprive him of his commission but also to throw him into jail.

It would have been far more politic to have merely dismissed him from the army and to have quietly deported him from the kingdom, adopting precautions to prevent his return. His imprisonment was a big mistake, for it excited against Ferdinand the wrath not only of the Bulgarian people at large but also of all the lad's princely, royal, and imperial connections, for, despite the obscure parentage of the young man's mother, the boy is, through his father, related to the reigning houses of Great Britain, Russia, Italy, Spain, Greece, and Montenegro.

What the future of young Count Hartenau's career will be it is difficult to say. His father was a particular favorite of Queen Victoria, who admired him greatly; also of Emperor Francis Joseph, who treated him with the most fatherly kindness after the loss of his throne and his marriage.

On the other hand, Alexander was openly hated by the present kaiser, by the late Prince Bismarck, and, above all, by Alexander III. of Russia, who, by the possession of some secret, was able not only to compel him to abdicate the throne of Bulgaria after having previously tolerated his being kidnaped from his palace in Sofia by Russian officers and carried off into Russian territory, but even to force him to contract a sudden and loveless marriage with Mlle. Loisinger in order to prevent his wedding his fiancée, Princess Victoria of Prussia, and thus becoming a brother-in-law of the czar and a grandson by marriage of Queen Victoria. Emperor Alexander also compelled him to give up his title of Prince of Battenberg and to obscure himself under the name of Count Hartenau.

What that secret was which gave Alexander III., the most honest and upright of men, such a tremendous hold upon Alexander of Battenberg not more than half a dozen people know, among them Emperor William and Gen. Baron Kaulbars, former governor general of Odessa and military plenipotentiary and agent of Russia at Sofia throughout the first five years of Battenberg's reign there.

After the kidnaping episode the prince returned to his dominions amidst such universal demonstrations of joy and affection that he resolved to remain. But within forty-eight hours of his resumption of the reins of government Gen. Kaulbars appeared upon the scene and had a prolonged secret interview with the prince, at the end of which the latter was completely crushed, his spirit entirely broken, and he immediately intimated that the further retention of his crown had become wholly impossible.

Of course there have been all sorts of conjectures about the matter. According to some, it was the legitimacy of his birth which was involved, since he was the eldest child of a runaway match on the part of Prince Alexander of Hesse and a pupil of the imperial school for girls at St. Petersburg, Mlle. Sophia Hauke. According to other surmises, it was some indiscretion of Alexander of Battenberg when an officer of the Russian army stationed at St. Petersburg, for the aversion of Czar Alexander III., who was his first cousin, dated even from then; and if Alexander of Battenberg was chosen as first ruler of Bulgaria it was in opposition to the then czarevitch but at the instance of his uncle and aunt, Emperor Alexander II. and the late Czarina Marie, who loved him better than any other of their nephews.

Whatever the real reason, it is a matter of speculation even to the most experienced statesmen and diplomats and to the various reigning houses today. The real story remains buried in the secret archives of the reigning houses of Hohenzollern and of Romanoff.

SEND IN THEIR NAMES.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would appreciate information, as a taxpayer, as to where to go to obtain relief from the dumping of ashes and garbage in alleys, both in receptacles and thrown upon the street, as well as the use of vacant property as a dumping ground by surrounding residents. Formerly we could secure a temporary abatement of this nuisance by notifying the alley inspector, but I am advised now that such office has been abolished, or at least is not filled, and this officer, when such office did exist, advised that he had no authority over vacant property. I have taken the matter up at the city hall, but have been referred to the committee on streets and alleys, and the relief has not been secured.

A SOUTH SIDER.

I beg leave to say that this letter is so general as to give us but little opportunity of answering same. I will advise the writer, however, that he was misinformed when told that the position of inspector had been abolished. I will also advise him that he was never referred to "streets and alleys south," as this committee would have as much to do with this complaint as you yourself. The police have the only authority over private property and the practice of throwing ashes in alleys is being daily battled with by this bureau, but it is a hard matter to catch the offenders. If this public spirited citizen had the interests of the city at heart as much as he claims he would send us the names of some of these violators so that we might be able to punish them for their violations of the ordinances.

HOW CORPORATIONS MAKE REPAIRS.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—As one who is "curious to know" I write to ask you why it is that a corporation (the Automatic Telephone company) is permitted to tear up pavements for which the taxpayer has had to pay out his good money to have laid. The particular place I have in mind is at the corner of Fiftieth place and St. Lawrence avenue, where the telephone people have cut a hole about ten or twelve feet across and about six feet deep from which they are running conduits east to Champlain avenue and west to Vincennes avenue, cutting a strip in the Fiftieth place pavement about eighteen or twenty inches wide from Champlain avenue to Vincennes avenue for the purpose. This pavement on Fiftieth place was laid about a year ago. In St. Lawrence avenue, where the pavement has only been down about two weeks, they have cut the same kind of a strip north from Fiftieth place to the alley, thence east through this alley. Why are they allowed to rip up a new pavement in this manner?

CITIZEN.

"Permits were issued to the Illinois Tunnel company (in compliance with the ordinance for the government of that corporation) to install conduits, manholes, and laterals in Fiftieth place from Washington Park court to Champlain avenue, and in St. Lawrence avenue from Fiftieth place to the alley north.

"Before this department permitted the company to open St. Lawrence avenue (recently improved) the company assured the board of local improvements that permanent repairs would be made as soon as possible.

"The American Asphalt company has concreted the trench in St. Lawrence avenue and the Barber Asphalt and Conway companies have concreted the trench in Fiftieth place. The wearing surface on these streets will be replaced within a few days."

Chicago, Nov. 24.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I am encouraged to offer a gestion for a slight and relatively inexpen sive improvement in connection with starting of trains from the terminal or Ja son park station of the South Side L.

I would suggest installing a couple semaphores or some equivalent device, be controlled by the switch operator tioned in the tower at end of platform, semaphores to be provided with arms ing the names of the various trains ing the station, as "loop express," Congress express," "stock yards expr etc. [Another arm for use in the eve might bear the words, "no passengers."]

This would accommodate a large constantly increasing number of pa who now dash madly along the platform board a train, only to discover it is one desired. Some such arrangement be especially appreciated during the winter months, as one could then remain the warm station until the particular desired was indicated.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

"LET US ALONE."

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I wish to express my unqualified approval of your editorial in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 28 entitled "Let Us Alone." I read the report of the answers to the 19,000 business men issued by the National Association of Manufacturers, and was much surprised that so large a percentage of the men of affairs should be guilty of mistaking the real difficulty we are now laboring under. In my opinion your editorial expresses the real facts, and it is to be regretted that this editorial cannot be carefully read and digested by each one of the 19,000 men who replied to the inquiries of the Association of Manufacturers. One of the serious difficulties of this country is the ignorance of men of affairs regarding matters pertaining to our political and social organizations.

WANTS LABOR PAID BY THE HOUR.

Oskaloosa, Ia., Nov. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Much has been written and said about the relations of capital and labor, and some legislation has been had, intended to harmonize the two. Briefly, the writer believes that if all laws now on the statute books regulating the time a laborer shall work in any one day were repealed and a law enacted that labor should be paid so much an hour, grading the kind of labor and giving the price per hour for each grade, permitting the laborer to work as long or as many hours a day as he chose, it would be a long stride toward the settlement of this much vexed and often disastrous condition of society. I commend this thought to the careful and earnest consideration of the legislator.

TRUSTS AND AGE LIMIT.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The advocates of trust organization make the claim that it is to the benefit of the people to have trusts, as it has a tendency to bring down the prices of commodities, if anything. On the contrary, it seems to be their aim to increase prices in most instances. It is further claimed that the wage earner is better paid than formerly, which is also not borne out by the facts. Outside of the natural increase brought about by the changed conditions of living since twenty years ago, the trusts are not responsible for any appreciable boost in wages. Nor is his tenure of employment any more secure than if he were working for an individual. And worst of all is the fact that the trust captains were the first to institute an age limit in business by maintaining that no matter as to a man's qualifications, ability, or experience, when he gets to be over 40 years old he is no longer of any earthly good. Not alone is he liable to be laid off when business is slow, but when he gets to be that old he is summarily discharged, without hope of getting employment elsewhere.

The hunting season which closed yesterday cost 101 lives and resulted in more or less severe injuries to thirty-seven men. Last year the dead numbered 100 and the injured 81.

The annual loss of life in the pursuit of game has attracted the attention of the authorities of the government and, by direction of Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department, the biological survey is studying the accidents this year, as well as statistics for the last five years.

The results of the investigation and suggestions for legislation will be embodied in a report to be published at the end of the year. With these statistics to work on the federal government will try to induce the various states to enact laws which will decrease the annual slaughter of hunters.

Beware of a Companion.

When one goes hunting he would better take no companion. This year's statistics prove that a companion is the most dangerous part of a hunting outfit. He has caused at least 25 per cent of the fatal accidents of the season, his carelessness being responsible for twenty-four deaths and the injury of fourteen persons who were lucky enough to escape mortal hurts.

A well known Chicago man was a victim of a companion. Charles G. McRoberts, law partner of Charles H. Aldrich, and once a candidate for alderman from the Twenty-fifth ward, while hunting near Antioch, Ill., was accidentally shot by his guide.

A. A. Hayes, general freight auditor of the Santa Fé railroad, also fell from a companion's shot. He was shot in the leg by a companion while hunting near Belpre, Kas., and died from resulting blood poison.

Thinks Everything a Deer.

The enthusiastic hunter who mistakes every moving thing for a deer also took his gun in hand again this year and when the sum total of his achievements in the way of killing people had been figured up it showed him responsible for the death of eleven persons and the injury of seven others.

Thirty-one of the dead were victims of their own carelessness, having shot themselves. Most of these accidents were caused by the victim pulling his gun, muzzle first, toward him while climbing a fence or leaving a boat or some other situation in which caution should have been exercised. Of the injured thirteen shot themselves.

Killed by a Street Car.

I. H. Ashton, 55 years old, 7214 Greenwood avenue, a boilermaker, was killed yesterday afternoon at East Sixty-first street and Cottage Grove avenue when he was run over by a Sixty-third street car.

FIRE THREATENS DUNNING ASYLUM

Early Morning Blaze Rouses County Charges; Destroys Store and Saloon.

FIREMEN CHECK SPREAD.

Engine Driver Proves a Hero; Leads Detail to Rescue Two Men Overcome.

Fire which destroyed a double two story frame building at Dunning early yesterday morning opposite the Dunning insane asylum caused considerable excitement to the inmates of the institution. The fire broke out in the rear of the saloon of Rudolph Bandow, 6503 Irving Park boulevard, and destroyed the saloon and the store of William Ulrich, 6501 Irving Park boulevard, entailing a total damage of $12,000.

Patients Ignorant of Peril.

One portion of the asylum was kept in ignorance of the fire. Patients in the section of the house directly opposite the fire were aroused by the noise and were considerably frightened. No harm to the inmates resulted. Supt. Lynch used all efforts to prevent the inmates of the institution from realizing the danger, for fear that a panic would ensue.

Driver Rescues Firemen.

Pipemen Thomas Ludden and Otto F. Vander, members of engine company No. 69, one of the first companies to arrive, were overcome by smoke. William Davis, driver, missed the two pipemen. Leaving his horses, he ran into the building. Other firemen followed him and they stumbled over the unconscious men, carried them out, and revived them.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY ROLE MAKES SOUTH SIDE GIRL BRIDE.

William H. Blythe Sees Miss Olive M. Murphy in "Heart Specialist's" Guise and Marries Her.

To her appearance in the rôle of Laura Jean Libbey, THE TRIBUNE "heart specialist" and novelist, friends of Miss Olive M. Murphy and William H. Blythe ascribe a romance, which on Thanksgiving eve, culminated in the marriage of the young couple at Holy Cross Roman Catholic church. The Rev. Father Francis E. Scanlan officiated.

Miss Murphy, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy of 6830 Langley avenue, appeared in a recent carnival given by St. Laurence Catholic church in the guise of Miss Libbey. Mr. Blythe, the son of Albert S. Blythe, 7229 Dobson avenue, helped make the affair a success.

How to Round Out and "Diswrinkle" Your Face

I believe I am putting one over on the dictionary when I say that the old-fashioned remedy thermodised jelly will "diswrinkle" any face. Hundreds of women have declared to me since I have established my Beauty Column that they never dreamed of such speedy and gratifying results as they have accomplished in the way of "looks" since applying thermodised jelly to their faces. If the druggist should ask dollars for this product instead of cents, I would nevertheless empty out my purse upon his counters and carry away my little tin box of thermodized jelly. Again, I will repeat that it does not merely tone up the outer cuticles, but it reaches beneath these down to the fibrous tissue that is all jaded from starvation. It heats and nourishes, and soon the tissue "takes hold" of life once more and becomes firm, normal and solid as in early youth.—Advt.

Round About Chicago.

An Unadulterated Thanksgiving.

BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE.

MR. SLYVERS presented himself at the Kranke home at half past 1 o'clock in the afternoon of Thanksgiving day so hungry that while he sat in the front room and talked blithely to his esteemed host he felt it would be only by the most heroic self-restraint that he would refrain from leaping at the bright gilded cage that swung in the window and swallowing the canary bird feathers and all without salt or pepper.

This savage attitude of Mr. Slyvers was due to the fact that he had gone into rigorous training for the turkey barbecue at Mr. Kranke's, and, as he wittily said to Putter, his fellow roomer at the boarding house, just before he started for the dinner, "Neither food nor clothes have passed my lips for twenty-four hours."

Mr. Slyvers never had dined at the Krankes' before. In fact, he hardly knew Mr. Kranke, only meeting him occasionally in the office; but when the latter asked him to come over for a Thanksgiving dinner he blithely accepted.

He noticed with some misgivings soon after he sat down in Mr. Kranke's parlor that his host had a little spirit lamp on the table over which was something cooking in a little pan and filling the air with a weird odor.

"You come from out of doors," observed Mr. Kranke; "probably rode on the street cars—great carriers of disease, street cars—but never mind; sit here for a while. The atmosphere is well filled with formic aldehyde which I am vaporizing over the lamp, and any disease germs you may happen to have about you will be destroyed."

Mr. Slyvers sat patiently waiting until Mr. Kranke decided he had been sufficiently fumigated and that he might meet Mrs. Kranke and Miss Ima Kranke without imperiling their lives.

Mrs. Kranke and her daughter glided in softly and shook hands with Mr. Slyvers in the same enthusiastic manner in which they might be expected to pick up a deceased catfish by the tail. Mr. Slyvers again felt a feeling of nervous dread passing over him, but he rallied and went out to the table.

He sat down and was immensely relieved when a maid entered and set a plate of oysters on the half shell in front of each member of the family and their guest.

"Don't be afraid to eat heartily," said Mr. Kranke genially. "You'll not get typhoid fever by eating these oysters, as I know you fear, although you were too well bred to say so. These oysters are not taken from ocean water filled with germs from the cities. In fact, they are not oysters at all. They are made from oyster plants raised on my father's farm down in the country and sent to me in carefully sealed packages and prepared for the table after being carefully sterilized."

Mr. Slyvers said he was delighted and ate the imitation oyster which tasted a good deal like stewed cotton.

Next came the soup. No deadly hint of ptomaine poisoning lurked in that soup. Mr. Kranke said so himself. It had been strained five times through a filter.

"What kind of soup do you think it is?" asked Mr. Kranke, smiling at his guest.

"Baled hay" were the words on the tip of Mr. Slyvers' tongue, but he checked them and said: "Why, mulligatawney, isn't it?"

Mr. Kranke frowned as if to indicate that if he ever caught a mulligatawney running around in his kitchen he would catch it in a steel trap and cut its tail off close up behind its ears.

"No," he replied, "this soup is made of four herbs that grow down on our farm. The men that pick them must wear gloves and after being dipped in boiling water are sealed in air tight cans and sent to me."

"Pa," spoke up Ima Kranke, who had just taken a bite of bread and butter, "I suspect this butter."

Mr. Kranke leaped from his chair and whirling around took down a test tube from a bracket on the wall and put a piece of the butter in the tube and corked it up. Then he sat down at the table holding the test tube in his hand. For ten minutes the Kranke family and their guest sat in silence and gazed on the test tube.

"As I suspected," said Mr. Kranke at the end of the ten minutes. "Hand me the ether, Ima."

Miss Ima Kranke secured a bottle of ether which her father after permitting the accused butter to cool poured into the test tube and shook vigorously.

"Oleomargarine," pronounced Mr. Kranke suddenly and in the same tone that the foreman of the jury in a murder case says, "We find the defendant guilty." The butter was taken away hastily and Mr. Slyvers, who had eaten some of it, was afraid for the moment that the next course would be a stomach pump.

But happily at this awkward interval the maid reappeared, bearing a great brown juicy turkey on an immense platter. Mr. Slyvers wanted to throw both arms around the turkey and lay his head on its shoulder and weep for sheer joy, but he contained himself with an effort and waited for Mr. Kranke to carve.

But instead of taking up the carving knife Mr. Kranke waited until the maid came in with a little tray on which were three or four test tubes. Mr. Slyvers looked at the test tubes and then his eyes rested fondly and regretfully on the turkey as he whispered softly, "Good-by, Mister Turkey, good-by."

"The butcher sent us this turkey yesterday," said Mr. Kranke, "and, following my usual custom, I took small bits of it and put them in these various solutions for investigation."

"Ha," said Mr. Kranke as he examined the first tube; "as I suspected. Mr. Slyvers, can you believe me when I say I also find orthohydroxy-benzoic acid has been put on this turkey?"

"Well," said Mr. Slyvers nervously, "that's all right—I—that is to say—you know—I like orthohydraulic acid. Yes, at home we used to have it on the table all the time. Of course some people like chutney sauce best, but I——"

"Why, Mr. Slyvers," said Mr. Kranke, "you don't understand; I could not permit a guest at my table to eat poison. Take the turkey away, Maggie, at once."

As the turkey went out the door Mrs. Kranke said she was sorry she could offer her guest nothing to drink, because the test she had made that morning showed a large percentage of chicory in the coffee, and that she had sent the milk into exile because it was suspected of harboring formaldehyde in its clothes. Also the cranberry sauce had been arrested charged with having benzoate of soda concealed on its person, the salad had been ruled out of the game because the olive oil was in quarantine to see if it were infected with paraffin hydrocarbons, and the chocolate cake had been stopped at the frontier carrying contraband red oxide of iron.

This ended the feast, but it was two hours more before the wretched Mr. Slyvers could escape from the lecture on "Food Adulterations and Poisons All Round Us" which was delivered by Mr. Kranke.

It was late in the afternoon and the white garbed student in the bacteriological laboratory at the medical college was getting ready to lock up and go home when Mr. Slyvers in a highly demoralized condition burst in upon him.

"Hey, Sarshan'er," shouted Mr. Slyvers; "shay, you, lishen me; make me a germ cocktail an' put a bashillus in it."

News of the Churches

Chicago Pastor Accepts Eastern Call.

Almost on the eve of the opening of his "church gymnasium," a project he had pushed through with some opposition from his "old line" members, the Rev. Frank M. Carson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lake View, has decided to leave his Chicago pastorate to accept the charge of the First Presbyterian church of Greenwich, Conn.

Tomorrow night Mr. Carson will dedicate the gymnasium adjoining the parsonage at 820 Edgecomb place. At that time he will probably announce his intention of leaving after fourteen years of service. During that period he has been active in synod work, serving as a moderator of the presbytery and delegate to numerous general assemblies.

Mr. Carson came here from Clinton, Ia., and previously had preached at Peekskill-on-the-Hudson. He is a graduate of Amherst college and Union Theological seminary.

The Greenwich church, which offers him $3,500 salary, is one of the oldest in New England.

Talks on "Slaves in a Free Country."

"Slaves in a Free Country" was discussed by the Rev. Payson L. Curtiss, pastor of the First Congregational church of Austin at the union Thanksgiving day meeting of Austin churches at the First Baptist church, Pine avenue and Ohio street.

"Man is free only when he has learned to submit gladly to great principles," he said, "when he is able to do right to his fellow man without coercion. This can only be obtained by a thorough education along lines of truth.

"The negro of today is almost as much of a slave as before the war, for he is held by ignorance. Another slave in a free country is the child forced to work in a factory or on the street instead of going to school. Senator Dolliver said this was our greatest problem."

The churches of Evanston held a union Thanksgiving service at the First Methodist Episcopal church. The Rev. Orvis F. Jordan, pastor of the Christian church, preached.

"I believe there should be a union of religion and politics," he said. "I believe the functions of government and the functions of religion are far from being divorced. This holiday seems to me to be the greatest day of all, for it is not only a religious day but also a patriotic day."

Sunday Schools to Convene at Harvey.

The Thornton township annual Sunday school convention will be held at the First Congregational church, Harvey, on Dec. 4-5, under the auspices of the Cook County Sunday School association. Twenty-eight churches and a dozen denominations will be represented. Sessions will be held afternoons and evenings.

Schenck, field secretary, Illinois State Sunday School association, will speak on "The Bible and the Home," at the first session. In the second session Mr. Schenck will discuss "The Opportunity of Adolescence," and Mrs. Florence Rice-Birge Snell of Oak Park will speak on "The Uses and Abuses of the Graded Lessons."

The feature of the third session will be an illustrated address on "A Vital Problem Solved," by Charles B. Hall, general secretary of the county organization. A. W. Campbell is president of the township organization.

Handy Meat Grinder.

"Here you will find one of my experiences. When powdered sugar or salt becomes lumpy it may be made fine by using the finest part of a meat grinder. This is also a great help in grating chocolate. S. B."

How our mothers kept house and achieved wonders of excellent cookery before meat grinder, vegetable press, and revolving egg beater were invented, and the gas range was not dreamed of by the most sanguine inventor of "housekeeping made easy" devices, is something to kindle thankfulness as the season of general rejoicing draws near, involving extra labor in kitchen and dining room.

Sugar and salt lump most grievously in wet weather. We are obliged to our new contributor for the "briefiet."

"Littles" Make for Prosperity.

"Your remark upon the 'vulgarity of extravagance' published in a family paper not long ago should have been read by my neighbor who gave me some peppers and tomatoes from her garden with the remark, 'We are tired of them.' She did not know that with a little rice, celery, and butter blended with flour I made a fine tomato soup. I cut some thick slices, dipped them into batter, and fried them. The peppers I scalded and stuffed with force meat (cold roast beef, minced fine, with bread crumbs and onion added) and baked them. With a Brown Betty pudding we made a meal for five!

"We are married to men who are good husbands but who have been unfortunate in getting work in the city. So we left it. A big contracting firm pays me $1 a day for boarding its men. I have four boarders, and I am saving money, while my neighbor owes four months' rent and a big grocery bill.

"Here are a few 'mean things' I keep in mind:

"Paper bags and string come handy for lunches; also paper from the inside of cracker boxes.

"Put canned tomatoes in paper bags; then put them in a dark place.

"Tomato cans cut like paper baskets can be made for ornaments for a Christmas tree; wire at the top; spread out first, then cut.

"Cardboard tops from milk bottles will often fit a wide mouthed jam jar.

"When in a hurry use condensed milk for sealing.

"Plenty of apples, with a few grapes added, make a fine jam.

"Put raisins into apple pie; elderberries, with raisins and juice and the rind of oranges, make a nice jam.

"Shall I call again? BUSY BEE."

1. Lest the thoughtless neighbor might see the strictures upon her housewifery I suppress the address of our notable correspondent. But every line of the letter has my hearty approval. The "littles" make up the total of prosperity in every department of life and labor.

2. When a child I read a chapter in Mrs. Childs' "Frugal Housewife" upon "saving paper and twine," which has held in my memory ever since. "Busy Bee's" recital of her small economies brings it vividly to me in every detail. Many confound "small" with "petty" in this connection. They are far from being synonyms; as remote in meaning and consequences as "parsimony" and "economy."

Call again and often!

Wants Formula for Dyeing Carpets.

"I should like to ask through your corner for a dye for carpets. I have some good marquette carpet that has faded out to nearly a drab. I should like to make it a red or green. I hear of this being done but do not know what to use. Any information you can furnish will be most gratefully accepted. MRS. E. F. G."

Some years ago I read correspondence upon this matter of dyeing carpets upon the floor, in the course of which a formula, said to be trustworthy, was given by a housewife who claimed to have used it successfully.

If readers know of any such method they will oblige our member and the Corner by letting us have a description of it.

Hint About Sauer Kraut.

"If you find these helps worth while, use them. If not, do as you please with them.

"Save clean wax papers to use on bread while rising and when you would bake it a nice brown.

"Use butter to grease instead of lard. The result is worth the trouble.

"Many relish my sauer kraut. I boil our kraut and pork in separate waters, drain off the water on the kraut, then boil it with the meat. "PRACTICAL."

And, unless my instinct deceive me, a descendant of the Knickerbocker "hausfrauen" who set the pace for the prime cookery the reputation of which lingers in the region to this day. "My sauer kraut" betrays the blood.

How to Make Catsup.

"I have twenty-six cans of condensed fancy tomatoes holding a quart each. How can I make catsup of it and Worcestershire sauce?

"Can any one make ammonia at home?

"Can any one of your readers tell me is it not a contagious disease when you can see the white of a cat's eyes, that becomes like a covering near the nose? The kittens got it, although she is not their mother. M. R."

1. All you have to do in order to make catsup of the tomatoes is to begin with the second stage of any good recipe for the same. Your tomatoes are already peeled and stewed. Now put them over the fire with a finely minced small onion for each quart and bring to a boil. Add then four bay leaves (you can buy them at the druggist's) for every gallon of tomatoes, a tablespoonful each of ground mace, white pepper, cloves, sugar, with salt and a tablespoonful of celery seed. This last should be sewed up in a net bag. Boil for six hours slowly, stirring often from the bottom. Lastly, pour in a pint of vinegar for each gallon. Boil up sharply for a minute and take from the fire. When it is perfectly cold bottle and seal. A recipe for Worcestershire sauce was published lately.

2. One cannot make ammonia without a chemist's skill and appliances.

3. The query respecting the cats is referred to lovers and keepers of feline pets.

Are Spareribs Canned?

"Can some one tell me how to lay by spareribs so as to keep them for winter use, and whether they should be put into tin cans? Is it all right to put them in and seal? "MRS. E. L."

I doubt if you could can spareribs. The only way that I have ever heard of by which they may be preserved is corning them, as you would beef.

Can correspondents suggest a better?

Offers Goulash Recipe.

Work for Experts.

"Does any one know of another way besides cementing to mend breaks in cut glass? Also how to mend a hot water bag? CHRISTINE."

1. The best, I might say the only safe, way of mending broken "fragiles" is to have the severed parts riveted into place by a competent workman. You may have this done at any of the principal china stores in your big city. I know, for I am using fine cut glass and porcelain which were riveted ten and twenty years ago. There is hardly a sign of the fracture to the casual eye. The rivets are cunningly concealed and the vessels are as sound as before they came to grief. I have never yet handled any patent cement that could withstand hot water and daily usage.

2. Take the hot water bag to some place where rubber surgical appliances are kept for sale and leave it to be mended by an expert.

Laura Jean Libbey's Comment and Advice.

At What Age Should a Girl Encourage a Lover?

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY.

[Copyright: 1911: By Laura Jean Libbey.]

THERE is a world of wisdom in the old saw, "As you bend a twig, so it will grow." If a girl of tender age is made a party to constant discussion of love and lovers it should not be wondered at that her mind will turn in that direction.

The life of what should be rightfully termed "a young girl" is clustered about her sixteenth year—a few brief months before and a few year—a few brief months bfeore and a few brief years after it. It is at this delightful age that the girl coaxes to have the tucks taken out of her dresses and to have her hair done up.

That is the crucial time at which childish amusements are wont to be flung aside, and the girl of new ideas yearns to break into society and to enjoy the pleasures which should be the special privilege of full fledged young ladies. The unwise guardian of the young girl, through mistaken kindness, tells her that with her youth and beauty she ought to capture the heart of one of the best of beaux. With this admonishing constantly imbued in her she has no compunction whatever in extending invitations to young men to call.

The evenings that should be spent in sorrowfully sorting over her dearly loved dolls, to decide which dearly loved little child she should give this one or that one to, she spends instead in entertaining young men.

Fleeting are the years of young girlhood and brief its joys. Love for the company of the opposite sex should not be contemplated by them or tolerated by their elders, whose power it is to nip early sentiment in the bud. At an unripe age girls have no knowledge of the elements of love that should last a lifetime. With them it is only fancy and magnified imagination. If a young man looks pensively into their eyes, holds their hands, and murmurs sentimental nothings in their ears they fly at the conclusion that he is in love.

They refuse to listen to reason to the contrary. The strictest of mothers is a blessing to a girl. She will never have cause to rue it who sets her foot down firmly against her 16 year old daughter receiving young men callers.

It is the maidens who have no parental rein to hold them in check in this regard who usually make unhappy marriages under the impression that it is a love affair, when it is simply a case of girlish infatuation. The young man whom a girl of 16 dreams over would scarcely amuse her at 20. Women's ideals change with the years.

Youthful enjoyment should be furnished daughter, participated in by girls of her own age, who should be welcomed with pleasure. But young men should be tabooed from these little gatherings.

Shall She Attend?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am young and have been a widow for a year. Would it be improper for me to attend a dance with a young man friend two years younger than myself? "BROWN EYES."

There is no reason why you should not attend if you wish to do so.

* *

No, Indeed.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I was at a friend's house the other night and a doctor was called in. When he left I was going the same way as he was. It was very dark. We are both married. He took hold of my arm. Do you think he meant any harm? FILIA."

No, indeed! He was simply trying to be polite to you. You must be a very silly person.

* *

Marriage License Query.

"Dear Miss Libbey: Will you kindly advise me if it is possible to secure a marriage license in this state and have the ceremony performed in another? A. B. C."

The marriage license must be secured in the state in which you are to be married.

* *

An Unpleasant Person.

"Dear Miss Libbey: I have been keeping company with a young man for a year. He seems to love me dearly, but he is all the time doubting me and is very jealous. When we are on the street or in the theater and I happen to turn around he thinks I am looking at some other young man. Every time we are together he asks me to tell him everything I have done since the last time he has seen me. Do you not think that this is a little annoying, and what would you advise me to do? MARIE."

He strikes me as being an unpleasant, rude person. Love that finds fault and criticises constantly isn't worth much. One wearies of suspicions and tires of the explanations. Life is too short for that kind of an existence. Avoid being placed in such a position.

Economical Housekeeping

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Ring Around Potato—an Economy.

THE old fashioned house mother liked to go to the "sociable" or a quilting or a church supper, so that she might taste of the pies that some one else cooked, or sample the doughnuts that her neighbor across town was famous for.

It happens that on a street, which we will call A streeet, where there are a dozen desolate eating places to the mile, there is one place that is as far above the others as daylight is from dark. We will call the people who run this dining room Mr. and Mrs. D. Here you may have what I believe, after considerable investigation, is the best meal for the money to be had in the city, and here lately there has been a reduction in price because when prices are high the first thing people economize in is their food bill. It happens that Mr. and Mrs. D. would rather do a big business in their big place, serving a 35 cent dinner, than a medium business with a 50 cent dinner.

The 50 cent dinner they served seemed remarkable for the money, and, of course, a 35 cent dinner with no easily apparent difference in quality seems more remarkable. But the difference is there, because, as all A street says, the D.'s certainly know the restaurant business. And the difference is there because Mrs. D. is very clever in the business of planning and knows how to make people cook things her way.

With the new price the soups are just as good and just the same as they were before. There is just as large a choice of meats—six or eight things, varying from day to day—and there is just the same choice of desserts, five choices.

The economies come where you would least expect to look for them, in such a place at least, and that is why you fail to see them at first glance, and here, again, is where Mrs. D. is clever. They are to be found in the salad and in that list of vegetables, etc., to be found between the meat and the dessert lists. One may possibly be left off here, a fritter or something, but three vegetables, a sauce, and hot and cold bread are present.

The shrinkage which you feel must be there, yet which you cannot see, is made up by such novelties as "ring around potatoes" and other inventions of Mrs. D.'s. In reading this name I supposed I should get a potato manipulated with one of those spiral vegetable cutters which cut one tuber or other vegetable so that they seem to be quadrupled in quantity. But, no, it was a plain and delicious steamed potato with its skin on, all but for the "ring around," which had been taken off.

It is a very pleasant thing to see the delight Mrs. D. takes in her inventions. With enough on her shoulders to make many women half crazy, she is always calm, composed, and attentive to every tiniest detail of the cooking and serving of food, so that it is no wonder that people break the bounds of neighborhood to eat at her café. The accomplished wife of a very well known man recently said to me: "A street was a desert before the D.'s came there. My boys would do anything, wash dishes and all, rather than go to A street to eat if we were without a cook, but now they are quite addicted to D.'s."

There is great economy in preparing ring around potatoes and steaming them instead of peeling, boiling, and mashing potatoes. The waste in the latter case is sometimes as high as 40 per cent, and at the best is about 20 per cent. And this waste is of the best part of a potato. It is sweetest next the skin and if it has a defect it comes at the heart.

A potato steamed in this way develops a nice flavor that saves seasoning. Its starch is changed by cooking into a sweeter and more sugary substance.

It is great economy from the food value standpoint and a saving in quantity in most cases, to steam all vegetables, whether we use the old fashioned steamer over an iron pot or some of these new fashioned steamers or varieties of double boilers, such attractive things as make our kitchens a delight to the eye.

If we want a macedoine of vegetables—to serve, perhaps, in a cream sauce—it is easy to put each vegetable in a different small tin and set them into the steamer, whereas otherwise each would have to be cooked in a different kettle, unless we had one of those triple kettles which cook three things over one burner.

And Mrs. D.'s salad. Instead of the considerably more expensive fruit salads with a dressing rich in cream, or a salad of head lettuce with peppers, cucumbers, etc., she has for one thing plain leaf lettuce with a French dressing made with twice as much oil as vinegar and seasoned generously with green and red peppers chopped fine and some onion or a suspicion of garlic. There is a very tasty dressing and the whole salad per person does not cost over 2 or 3 cents at the most.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Secrets

The Woman Who "Slumps."

BY LILLIAN RUSSELL.

[Copyright: 1911: By Lillian Russell.]

THERE are so many women nowadays whose interest in life seems to have ended—to all appearances they have no object in living. These women perhaps have been beautiful in face, figure, and spirit; they have borne families and brought them up to an age where their talents of attractions have taken them into a world of marriage, business, or society of their own.

It is at this period that a woman's interest for herself should begin. If she has done her duty as a wife and mother, her family is now self-reliant and she should look to herself for she has the time to enjoy life and humanity. Her duty is done, her best has been given to home and children. Now she really can live her own life at its best, with or without the loving protection of a husband. Of course, if the woman has a husband she still has duties in a way, and he is the center of interest, but the widow is the one who is inclined to "slump," to sit back and lose interest in life. The woman who does this tacitly admits that man and man's admiration only inspire for her a charming toilet or a seductive smile.

Life itself should be the incentive. The animal sits in the sun or sleeps on the hearth and awaits bidding to move. Don't degenerate to the level of the animal. We are given the privilege of making necessity a choice. This honor is conferred upon us by the Creator. Do not insult him by neglecting his handiwork.

Feet are given to us to walk with in God's great out of doors where we can breathe the pure air of his heaven. Our eyes must see all his handiwork that opens before them, our hands must not cease to do wonders because our children cease to ask, and our hearts must still love and pity.

The woman who "slumps" gives herself over to the animal who is always lying in wait for her and who can only be kept in subjection by mind and spirit. Arise, take up your interest in life, and enjoy the fresh air which is full of the essence of good. Take interest in the affairs of your friends and family. Make work for yourself. Praise that you can appreciate and relieve the sufferings even of one human being by your help or sympathy. Your life will be beautiful and your face will light up with a beauty which is far above that of mere youth.

Remember: There is no loveliness so resplendent as the beauty of intelligence, experience, and love.

Lillian Russell's Answers.

H. H.: An effective treatment for callous spots is to soak the feet in hot soapy water every night for five minutes. At the end of that time, after drying, rub the hard spots with a piece of pumice stone—not the prepared kind, but the stone in its rough condition. Constant rubbing every night for a couple of weeks will remove the callous. If during the day you wear cushions or pads that are soft and cover the spots with cold cream to prevent the callous from hardening you will gain quicker results.

B. G.: I do not advise the frequent use of dry shampoo, for it is apt to clog the pores and cause dandruff to form on the scalp. If you care for it write me a note, sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and I will send you the recipe for an excellent shampoo.

H. D.: To whiten the arms spread a paste made of one dram refined tar, one pint of violet extract, one pint of olive oil. When your arms are completely coated, bind them long, narrow strips of soft cotton cloth.

A. R. M.: The cream you mention is good for the hands. If you will make the following recipe and use it on your hands after washing and drying them thoroughly I think you will have no further difficulty: Two drams gum tragacanth, fourteen ounces water, one ounce glycerin, two drams tincture benzoin, two drams borax, and four drams white [illegible] extract. Macerate the tragacanth in the water until it is perfectly soft. Dissolve the borax in the glycerin. Mix the two solutions, add the tincture and perfume, and press through muslin. Rub in until perfectly dry.

CONSTANT READER: I know of no way possible to make dimples in the cheeks or chin by massage. A dimple is primarily a gift of nature, and as you grow older unless you want it to deteriorate into a deep furrow you must be careful to think happy thoughts.

MRS. J. J.: Gentle massage will reduce the end of your nose. Begin at the end and massage toward the cheeks. A week isn't a fair trial for the alcohol remedy. I advise you to continue the use of it for a while longer, and accompany it with the massage. I am so glad you like the cold cream and the skin recipes I sent you, and am glad to know that it has done you so much good.

Two Operas Mark Thanksgiving Day.

Chicago Company Gives First English Opera.

BY GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

THE Chicago Opera company's first adventures with the English language—or, to put it more accurately, the first adventures of the English language in a performance of grand opera by the Chicago company—occurred yesterday afternoon when Mr. Dippel's artists presented "Hänsel and Gretel."

Since there were present as many people as gathered to hear Mme. Tetrazzini recount the lyric sorrows of Violetta Monday evening, it would seem the general public is willing to listen to opera in the vernacular.

Opera in English is no experiment in America. It recently has been cultivated with much profit and success by the Aborn companies, whose services to the art have been chiefly concerned with demonstrating to the satisfaction of every one who has heard their performances that our mother tongue is as singable and as understandable in opera as we have long known it to be in concert and oratorio.

* * *

In confessing that such artists as Miss Ewell and Mr. Kreidler are able to pronounce and enunciate English more clearly than Miss Cavan, Miss Riegelman, Miss Ingram, and one or two other members of the cast of yesterday afternoon it is not meant to imply the standard of the performance was musically on a par with the opera of the Aborn company's productions.

It was as far above it as the splendid orchestra and scenic forces of a real grand opera organization could make it. But in the one direction of English enunciation and diction there were some glaring shortcomings. The reason for this circumstance is not far to seek. Miss Cavan, Miss Riegelman, and other Americans in the cast have spent years of study and effort in mastering the French, German, and Italian languages in song. Their English is unclear in song because they probably speak it carelessly, as do most Americans. One can distinctly mark Miss Cavan's broad New York accent, while Miss Riegelman's vivid r's proclaim her from the west.

Armand Crabbe sings English as well as the American members of the company sing French and Italian. Miss Wittkowska also got every word across the footlights.

* * *

However, it is a question whether German singers would have made themselves understood, or even heard, in parts of the first act for Conductor Szendrei, who made his Chicago debut with this performance, developed the traditional German fondness for orchestral fullness at the expense of the vocalists.

If one view his interpretation from the instrumental standpoint alone, it was nevertheless a remarkable one, distinguished by its splendid feeling for the many voiced melodies of the Humperdinck score, by that polyphonic nuance that colored the passing commentary of tributary voices with the glow and shadow of many delicate contrasts.

* * *

The vocal honors of the afternoon were carried off by Miss Riegelman, as Gretel, and Miss Wittkowska, as the Witch. Here are two young artists of remarkable promise. Miss Riegelman's voice is a clear, but warm soprano, brilliant in the upper register and used with an ease and certainty throughout its compass that bespeaks splendid schooling. Miss Wittkowska excels her both as to volume, range, and sympathy of quality. Both young women possess dramatic talents and attainments that are significant, and both met with a cordial reception.

Miss Cavan, though naturally gifted both as to vocal and acting abilities, impresses as just falling short of the possibilities her talents imply. Miss Ingram as the Mother, Miss Starrell as the Sandman, and Miss Spiesberger as the Dewman, while not devoid of vocal talents, showed themselves so deficient in stage experience that one is moved to resent their presence in the cast.

TETRAZZINI IN "RIGOLETTO."

Those glories of Italian song which inspired Verdi to create "Rigoletto," that masterpiece of his youth, were abundantly dispensed last night by Mme. Tetrazzini, Mr. Bassi, Mr. Sammarco, Mr. Berardi, and Mr. Huberdeau, with Mr. Campanini in the conductor's stand. Thus announced their prophecies of the dramtic powers so wonderfully realised in "Aida" and "Otello" are fascinating to the student of the art, an aspect of the performance with which the general public was but slightly concerned, since it was lost to all other considerations than those of vocal beauty.

With this element so perfectly represented, it is not remarkable that the listeners should give themselves up to a sensuous enjoyment that was modified only by the moments when Mme. Tetrazzini indulged in some sensational bit of technical display. Yet the more serious values of the opera received emphasis in the beginning of the second act when Sammarco pronounced Rigoletto's great soliloquy with deep dramatic portent.

MABEL RIEGELMAN AS GRETEL in "HANSEL and GRETEL"

Every member of the cast was in fine voice and the performance moved from one number to another with never flagging interest. The recitative just mentioned was hardly passed when the tender duet between Rigoletto and Gilda added to the rich sonority of Sammarco's voice, Mme. Tetrazzini's warm, pure, and perfect tones.

Mr. Bassi's entrance and the ensuing ensemble heightened the vocal tension, and it reached a splendid climax in Mme. Tetrazzini's interpretation of the "Caro Nome," which moved the audience to such enthusiasm that a repetition was inevitable.

* * *

The chorus and the scene between Gilda and Rigoletto in the next act sustained the same artistic level. Mr. Bassi lifted it a trifle in the buoyant strains of "La Donna e Mobile," and the performance culminated in a reading of the quartet that was the finest heard in Chicago within the last decade.

The Thomas orchestra celebrated Thanksgiving by playing a popular program in Orchestra hall. The attendance was large, despite the counter attraction at the opera, and the audience received such well worn favorites as the overture to Smetana's "Bartered Bride," the larghetto from Beethoven's second symphony, and "Under the Trees" by Massenet with every evidence of approval. Mr. Schreurs and Mr. Steindel contributed the clarinet and 'cello obligati in the Saint-Saëns number with their wonted taste and sympathy, and Mr. Stock was in particularly happy mood, achieving, in addition to many accustomed interpretative graces, a certain concentrated and focused quality of the orchestral tone that was particularly attractive.

The management reported an act of courtesy on the part of Henry Russell, director of the Boston opera, that deserves the highest commendation. In arranging its forthcoming eastern tour the Thomas orchestra booked the evening of Dec. 13 for its Boston concert. The Boston opera had announced a special performance with Mme. Eames as "guest" for the same evening, but on learning the plans of the orchestra Mr. Russell voluntarily announced a postponement of his performance to the evening of the 14th.

* * *

The Chicago Singverein, William Boeppler conductor, gave a concert in Orchestra hall last night, which was the occasion for the display of splendid choral art. The interpretation accorded the "Sanctus" from the "Missa Choralis" of Franz Liszt, which was the program's first offering, and had never before been presented in Chicago, must serve as representative of the present status of Mr. Boeppler's chorus, but the organization can well afford to rest its claims to recognition on this number alone. In unity of choral tone, in the niceties of shading, in the massiveness of the climaxes, and the exquisite quality of the pianissimo effects it was masterly.

Even the Dogs Eat Turkey.

GEORGIA REIGNS OVER LAND SHOW

Visitors Receive Pecan Nuts as 'Extra Course' to Thanksgiving Dinners.

STATE BOOTH BESIEGED.

"Texas Day" Comes Next; Robert Lovett, Head of Harriman Lines, Will Speak.

An extra course to the Thanksgiving day dinners of thousands of visitors at the Land Show was added last night. It was Georgia day, and every caller at the Georgia booth was given a handful of pecans. In addition the representatives of the southern state started out with the idea of presenting each visitor with a small tin pail filled with cottonseed meal and oil and cotton bolls.

The souvenirs excited such interest that the Georgia booth was besieged by eager crowds and the work of distribution had to be halted temporarily. But every one who passed through the entrance to the Coliseum was met by a force of clerks and received a badge bearing the single word Georgia.

Previous attendance records were broken by 7 o'clock in the evening.

Today has been designated Texas day. In point of important speakers it will be one of the notable days of the show. Robert Lovett, directing head of the Harriman railroad system, is scheduled to speak on the "Future of the Southwest"; C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, will talk on "Texas Railroads"; and D. B. Clarkson, head of the Chicago publishing house of D. B. Clarkson & Co., will speak on the growth of the cotton industry in Texas.

Feet Tired— So Tired?

TIZ Makes Sick Feet Well No Matter What Ails Them.

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used."—A. F. Dreutzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

M'FARLAND WINS; BOUT GOES LIMIT

Great Display of Gameness Enables Tommy Murphy to Stay Twenty Rounds.

PACKEY BREAKS HAND?

Claim Made That Injury in the Twelfth Round Handicapped Chicago Pugilist.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 30.—Packey McFarland, the idol of the Chicago stockyards, won and lost today when he was awarded the decision over "Harlem Tommy" Murphy at the end of twenty rounds of fighting before 6,000 critical spectators.

The Chicago boy's victory over the tough New Yorker, whom 90 per cent of those present expected him to knock out, was clean and left little room for argument, but the rank and file of experts and fight followers seemed unanimous in the belief that as an opponent of Champion Ad Wolgast the Chicagoan was an impossibility. Hence his victory over Murphy left a tinge of disappointment among fight followers which they were not backward in expressing.

McFarland and his handlers claimed that he had broken his right hand in the twelfth round, and a cursory examination at the conclusion of the battle showed that member to be badly puffed and swollen, but of this the public was not aware until after it had filed out of the arena.

Murphy a Game Fighter.

If he really broke his hand, Packey fought a wonderful battle. Murphy, on the other hand, gave an exhibition of gameness and ability to come back rarely seen in a prize ring.

During the early rounds McFarland fairly smothered the little Harlem fighter with a dazzling variety of punches from which there was no escape. Once he sent Murphy flat on his back, but Tommy was up in a trice, apparently none the worse for wear. Time and again Murphy was all but fought out of the ring into the laps of the newspaper men and appeared to be in great distress, but the well defined punch was not forthcoming to give him his quietus.

All the time McFarland gave an exhibition of blocking, smothering, and sidestepping that called forth cheers. He opened cuts over Murphy's eyes and damaged his left ear until it took on the proportion of an egg. In the face of this constant rapid fire the stout hearted little easterner fought back every minute, and made a better showing in the last two rounds than did McFarland.

McFarland Begins to Slow Up.

For twelve rounds the battle was onesided. Then it was noticed that McFarland began to slow down and seemingly had tired. In several of the succeeding rounds he would spurt and pummel his antagonist unmercifully, but Murphy fought back with desperation, and some of his body punches made deep inroads on McFarland's vitality.

After the fifteenth round Murphy took on new courage and there was little question that he would last the twenty rounds. In the final two rounds he electrified the spectators by taking the battle to McFarland and it seemed as if the bell terminating the contest was as welcome to the Chicago man as it was to Murphy. Both fighters showed the marks of the conflict, but they were of a superficial nature.

Summing up the battle, McFarland outpointed his adversary to such an extent that the latter's gameness and ability to absorb punishment did little to make it a two man affair. But the knockout punch was lacking and the reputed power of the McFarland right cross proved a negligible quantity.

Little Betting at 10 to 8.

There was little betting at the ringside. The prevailing odds were 10 to 8, with McFarland favorite, and no Murphy takers at that. There was some betting at even money that McFarland would win within fifteen rounds.

The first preliminary terminated in the first round, when Joe Acheson sent Walter Kane of Chicago to the mat for the count with a left hook flush to the jaw. They fought at the featherweight limit.

Murphy was first to enter the ring at 2:52 o'clock. He was followed at once by McFarland. The two fighters shook hands and were at once introduced. Jack Britton, a Chicago lightweight, jumped over the ropes and issued a personal challenge. Referee Harry Foley called the men to the center of the ring and time was called at 2:58 o'clock.

McFarland expects to leave for Chicago on Monday, whence he will proceed to New York to keep an engagement with Matt Wells, the British champion.

RICHIE SPRINGS SURPRISE, BUT WELSH GAINS VERDICT.

Eleventh Hour Opponent for Britisher Goes Limit in Bout in Los Angeles Ring.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30.—Willie Ritchie, a lightweight from the training entourage of Packey McFarland, achieved an international fistic reputation today by staying twenty rounds with Freddie Welsh, the British lightweight challenger, who was to have gone on with Ad Wolgast at Vernon today.

Ritchie on twenty-four hours' notice substituted for Wolgast. Welsh was given the decision, but Ritchie had him groggy on two or three occasions and after the mill the one topic of conversation among the fans centered on the question: "How long would Welsh have lasted against Wolgast, if the latter had been in the ring?"

After an all night train ride from San Francisco, Ritchie entered the arena somewhat heavy. Welsh appeared trained to the minute. Welsh excelled in ring generalship and did most of the leading, but his blows lacked steam.

For the first few rounds Ritchie was cautious and evaded Welsh. In the fifth, however, after Welsh had landed two or three punches to the head and body, Ritchie cut loose and surprised Welsh with a hard right to the face.

In the nineteenth Ritchie almost upset Welsh with two rights and a left to the jaw. Welsh appeared to have lost his vim and was wild. In the last round Ritchie shot a straight right to the chin, which perceptibly weakened the Britisher. Another right to the jaw made Welsh's knees wabble, and his return was too short. The bell sounded with both men fighting viciously on the ropes.

FORBES BEATEN BY O'KEEFE IN BOUT AT NEW ORLEANS.

Philadelphia Fighter Wins Decision Over Chicagoan After Ten Rounds—Harry Floored in Seventh.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Eddie O'Keefe of Philadelphia got the decision over Harry Forbes of Chicago at the end of ten rounds tonight before the Orleans Athletic club, the decision meeting with the favor of one of the largest crowds that has seen a fight here in some time.

O'Keefe was too strong for the Chicago bantam, and although Forbes showed a great deal of his former cleverness and fought O'Keefe to a standstill in the first couple of rounds, after the sixth round the fight belonged to O'Keefe, who floored Forbes in the seventh round with a right on the jaw.

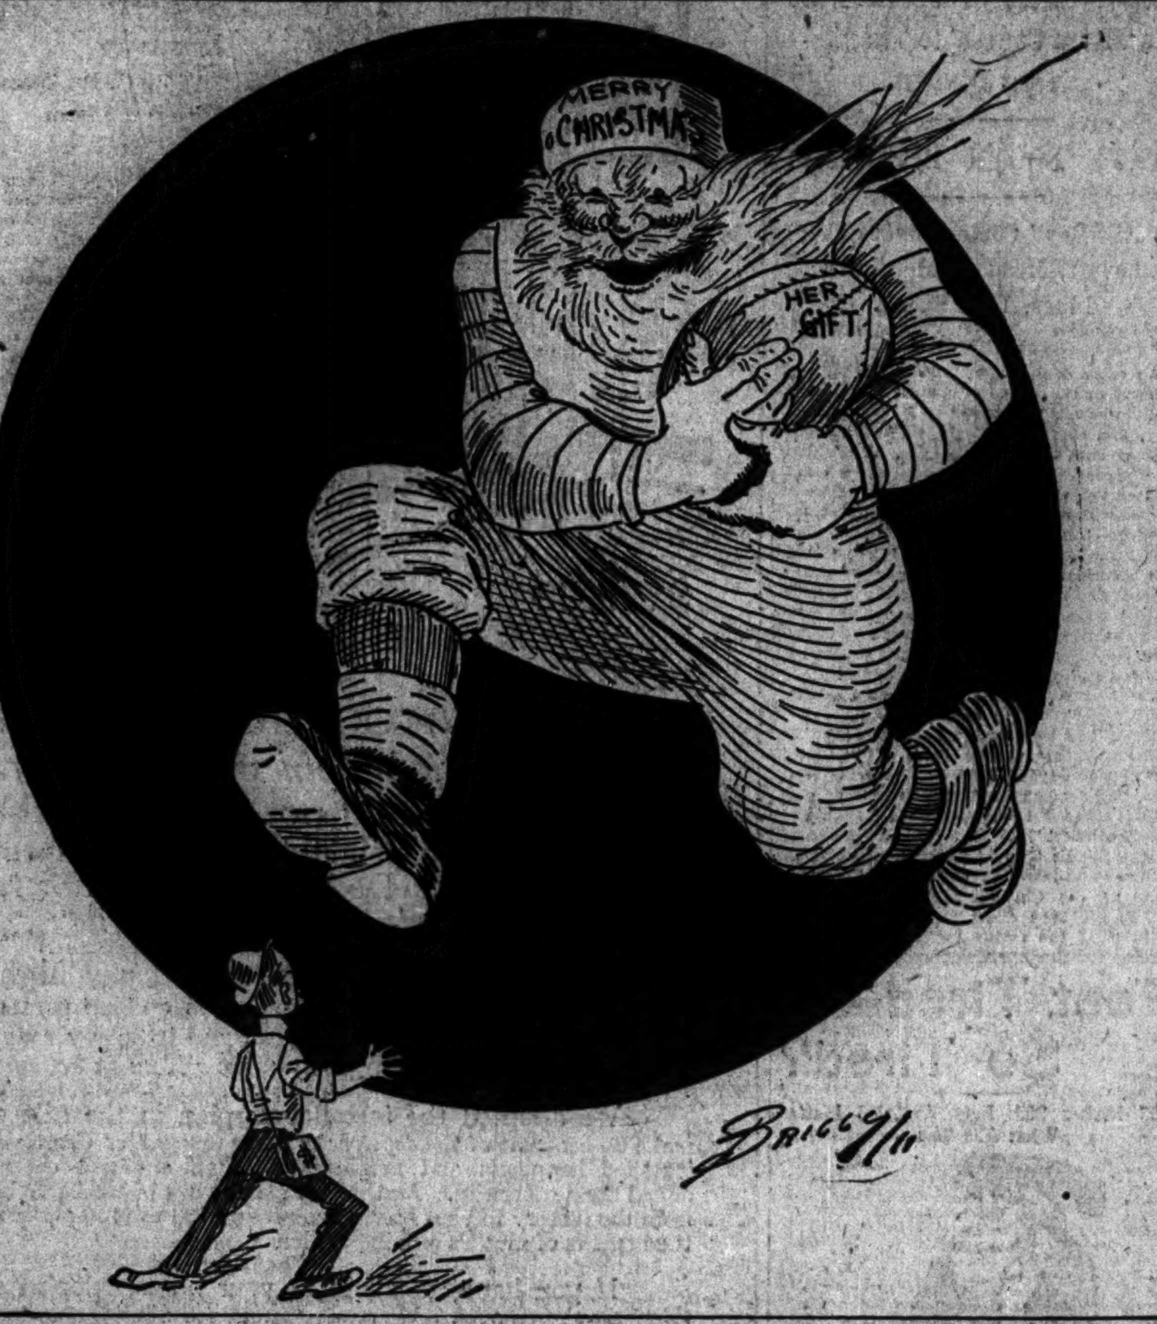
O'Keefe then outpointed Forbes in the remaining rounds, but Forbes resorted to frequent clinches.

KENOSHA CLOSED TO BOXERS.

Sheriff Refuses to Issue Permit to Promoters for Coulon-Kitson Bout on Dec. 8.

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Boxing promoters in Chicago who have been planning to hold fights in Kenosha received another jolt today when the sheriff of Kenosha county, Andrew G. Stahl, flatly refused to issue a permit for a bout between Johnny Coulon and George Kitson which was to have been pulled off here on Dec. 8. The sheriff declined to discuss his act more than to state that similar action probably would be taken in other cases of a similar nature.

BETTER TACKLE IT NOW.



Story of McFarland-Murphy Fight by Rounds.

FIRST ROUND—Murphy took the aggressive but failed to connect with a volley of rights and lefts, McFarland covering cleverly. McFarland hooked sharply to the stomach with his right. As the round ended McFarland bled slightly from the back of the neck, a scratch being opened during one of the clinches. It was a round without feature.

THIRD ROUND—The New York fighter's right eye was slightly closed as he came to the center of the ring. McFarland forced him against the ropes and drove in half a dozen light lefts to the face and followed with two rights. Getting Murphy into a corner he walloped him twice on the face with stinging short arm punches. Packey bled slightly from the nose as he took his seat. McFarland had the better of the round.

FOURTH ROUND—Murphy opened with a left shot to the nose, then hooked with his right, but McFarland returned each punch with interest and Murphy slipped to his knees. Murphy brought blood from McFarland's nose with a straight left to that member. McFarland confined his attacks to the body, and varied this with several terrific right uppercuts to the jaw, the last of which nearly floored the New Yorker. It was a viciously contested round, with honors in McFarland's favor.

FIFTH ROUND—McFarland started with a left hook to the stomach and quickly followed it with a right to the same place as they clinched. Murphy slipped but was up in an instant, only to be floored, for the count of two, with a short right to the jaw. Murphy was forced against the ropes, and the round ended with McFarland shooting a volley of right and left short arm punches to the stomach. McFarland's round.

SIXTH ROUND—Packey sent a hard left to the stomach and a moment later ran Murphy back to the ropes with a left to the stomach. Then he drove his right to the jaw with great force and Murphy reeled against the ropes. "That's good," said Murphy, as McFarland, keeping up his good work, planted his right time and again to the jaw. McFarland displayed great cleverness. McFarland's round.

SEVENTH ROUND—McFarland forced his opponent against the ropes, landing a bewildering succession of face punches. A powerful right sent Murphy's head back and two or three similar punches kept his head bobbing. Murphy appeared to be in sore straits. Packey pushed him out of a clinch as the bell rang. Murphy's left eye was swollen as he hopped to his corner.

EIGHTH ROUND—The Chicago fighter gave his antagonist no rest. He planted left and right to the face, following with two hard lefts to the stomach. Murphy retaliated with a hard left hook to the jaw. Packey swung his right to the jaw and his left to the stomach. Murphy again was plainly in distress. Just before the bell McFarland shot in two terrific punches to the jaw and stomach.

ELEVENTH ROUND—They milled viciously against the ropes, with Murphy landing powerful right and left short arm jolts on the stomach. McFarland, straightening up, swung several times with right and left, landing on the jaw. Both fought willingly and Murphy, breaking from a clinch forced McFarland to the ropes with half a dozen hard stomach wallops. It was Murphy's round.

TWELFTH ROUND—McFarland in this round displayed wonderful cleverness, both in offensive and defensive milling. They battled around the ring and Murphy almost shot through the ropes from the effect of his fruitless but vicious attack. Packey staggered his man on a breakaway with a series of lefts and rights to the jaw. Murphy was hurt and showed it, but fought back with rare determination. The bell closed another McFarland round.

THIRTEENTH ROUND—Packey opened up wickedly, landing a solid right to the face, following it with three similar blows. Then Murphy came to life and made one of his famous body assaults, McFarland landing against the ropes. They exchanged face punches and the round ended with both strong.

FIFTEENTH ROUND—McFarland almost sent Murphy through the ropes with a right to the stomach and a left to the eye. The left hand blow opened a wide gash, from which blood came in a stream. Renewing the attack, Packey again all but sent the practically defenseless Murphy off the platform. Clinging to his antagonist, Murphy received a brace of terrific body punches. McFarland had all the better of it.

SIXTEENTH ROUND—Packey seemed to be looking for a chance to land a knockout punch, but there was no opening. Finally McFarland smothered his man with left and right jolts to the face and stomach and Murphy clinched. Murphy took further hard punishment unflinchingly and got in one good facer just before the bell rang.

SEVENTEENTH ROUND—They mixed it against the ropes, and after McFarland had landed twice on the face, Murphy rushed him against the ropes and put in two powerful body punches. Packey rushed Murphy across the ring, landing right and left on the body. Murphy then uppercut with his right. They were in a mixup on the ropes when the round ended without damage to either.

NINETEENTH ROUND—McFarland crowded, and, after Murphy had put in two short arm lefts to the face, one of which started the blood afresh from Packey's sore nose, they mixed it viciously in midring. McFarland sent in two terrific lefts to the jaw, but Murphy forced him back against the ropes with a series of body and stomach punches that made the crowd stand up. They fought at a furious pace and both were tired as the round ended. It was an even round.

TWENTIETH ROUND—Murphy's ear was split and swollen twice its normal size as they shook hands. McFarland planted left and right to the face and Murphy's knees sagged. McFarland apparently was too tired to do any execution and Murphy fought like a demon at close range. Murphy was battering at the Chicago man when the final bell rang. Referee Foley promptly gave the decision to McFarland.

AD WOLGAST RESTING EASILY.

Lightweight Champion Is Pronounced by Physicians to Be in Satisfactory Condition.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30.—Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight pugilist, who underwent an operation yesterday for the removal of his vermiform appendix, was resting easily tonight and was pronounced by his physicians to be in a satisfactory condition.

Wolgast showed much interest in the outcome of the Welsh-Ritchie fight today, and smiled when told that Welsh had secured the decision at the end of twenty rounds of grueling fighting. He made no comment.

Manager Tom Jones denied the reports that Wolgast would be unfit to fight after he had recovered from the efforts of the operation.

SPERO EASY MARK FOR NELSON.

"Battler" Lets Opponent Stay Six Rounds, Although One Would Have Been Enough.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—The twenty round bout between Battling Nelson of Chicago and Joseph Spero of New York before the National Sporting club was won easily by Nelson in the sixth round. Spero would have been easy for Nelson in the first round, but Battling allowed his opponent to remain until the sixth. Boxing is being killed in Toronto by such an exhibition as was put on here tonight.

FIRE WRECKS KLING'S PLACE.

Former Cub Catcher's Billiard and Pool Rooms Destroyed—Estimates His Loss at $90,000.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 30.—Fire which wrecked the five story Hewson building, in the heart of the retail district today, totally destroyed the billiard and pool establishment of John Kling, former Cub catcher, now with the Boston Nationals. Kling estimates his loss at $90,000, of which the heaviest is the destruction of expensive paintings with which his place, occupying two floors, was decorated. The fire started at 4 o'clock in the morning and was not under control until 7 p. m. The total loss was $230,000.

"JINX" ON BOXING THINKS MARQUIS

Lightweight Bouts in Particular Seem Fated to Fall Through.

WOLGAST MISHAP CITED.

Matt Wells May Take On a Middleweight or Two Just for "Pot Boilers."

BY THE MARQUIS OF QUEENSBERRY

There seems a fatality about planned lightweight contests and the latest abandonment through Wolgast's misadventure once more puts the question of supremacy on the shelf.

McFarland has engagements and many now think there is a chance of his going to London to meet Matt Wells. Mr. Eugene Corri has again expressed the opinion that Wells is the coming champion and this indorses the favorable views I have expressed from time to time regarding the ex-amateur Englishman.

There is more than a chance that Wells, failing to find a lightweight championship contest, will take on a middleweight or two, stipulating that his opponent shall not exceed 150 pounds.

Wells is more than confident he can beat Wolgast and is most anxious about the prospect of a meeting with McFarland. But, as I have said, he may "pot boil" with middleweights.

Matt Wells continues to give credit for a great deal of his success to that prince of trainers, Dai Dolling, who reciprocates by saying Wells is the greatest fighter he ever prepared. Dolling is a most knowledgeable man and not at all assertive, and certainly not a flatterer. He is now busy preparing another boxer and then will turn his attention to McFayden for the six days' bicycle contest at Madison Square garden.

Of course it is impossible to give an all round acceptable opinion as to what should be done in any country in the matter of legalising boxing. Nevertheless, many may agree that boxing contests should be a matter for local option, as distinct from national or state intervention and legislation, civic bodies should be able to decide on the local sports and pastimes just as they do concerning licenses for drink or amusements. The question should be absolutely a local matter and one governed by the predominance of local opinion. Instead, therefore, of butting heads against a wall in the endeavor to repeal state laws, there should be the plan of campaign to modify the law so as to leave "the to be or not to be" about boxing to local rulers as representing the people chiefly concerned. In a vast country like this a few hundred miles may make all the difference as regards the taste and temperament of the people.

Tony Caponi Floors Smith.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 30.—Rube Smith of Denver received a left hook to the jaw last night in the tenth round of a match here, whereupon the referee stopped the fight and gave the decision to Tony Caponi. Smith was too groggy to continue.

CUI BONO?

O, yes, me dear Markiss, it's pleasant to know
That boxing is not at all brutal. Quite so,
That down in its 'eart it's a gentleman's game
And should 'ave been spared such a terrible name.
It's an art that appeals to the manly in men,
Uplifting, instead of degrading. . . . But then
When longhairs surround us and hold us in thrall,
What does THAT get us? Why, nothing at all.

We know there's good sense on the side of the sport,
But good sense is not in high favor at court.
We've argued that point, but the throne hasn't budged.
What chance have we got when the case is prejudged?
Hysterical bunk has the dominant say
And reason is given no hand in the play.
We may put up our fight with our backs to the wall.
What does THAT get us? Why, nothing at all.

GET THIS.

Now that you have cooled out after your bout with the national bird—as it is reasonable to suppose you have—what's the matter with beginning training for the GOOD FELLOW stakes? The formula, as it appears hereabouts and frequent, is not hard to take and the effect will be the right kind of a tingle under the vest at Christmastide, which is rolling hither rapidly. "For inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these"—you know the rest of it. It's the real dope, pal. Go to't.

The Commercial club of Mineral Wells, Tex., continues to circularize. Perhaps it has not heard.

Windsor, Ont., which sometimes is used as a convenience by Detroit, has gone dry on the boxing game, thus accentuating the complete throwdown of reciprocity.

"THE OUT PATIENTS OF BEDLAM."

[Put up expressly for next summer's baseball consumption. Lay on side in a cool, dry place. When ready for use open softly and decant.]

"The out patients of Bedlam, otherwise the 22d deg. rooters, swarmed early and took possession of the tier of boxes back of the home players' bench, where——"

"When Schulte made that terrific drive with two on in front of him the right field bleacherites outpatiented the out patients of Bedlam."

"The o. p. of B." [C. Dryden's form.]

ALSO FOR THE INTERNES.

Dear Hek: If I had anybody to lay me I wouldn't mind risking a few washers at a fair price that T. Fussy Jones is making it hard for the doctors and nurses in that Los Angeles hospital where his chief asset is confined.

CLONTARF.

Given a good day and field there will be "a thoroughly representative gathering," quoted, at the football game between the Oak Park and St. John's prep school teams tomorrow. For this will be the only national football championship decided this year. Moreover, there is a strong Chicago impulse to see those Oak Park boys in action for the last time. They, or most of them, will college it in the east. These neighboring seats of learning cannot grab or hold their kind. More's the pity.

PLAY IT EITHER WAY.

When we have Ad and Packey matched
There always comes to blight us
The sheriff, governor, or mayor,
Or else appendicitis.

They'll meet not in the ring. The fates
Determined are to cheat us.
When nothing else can intervene
There comes appendicitis.

L. B.—We calls 'em "quail"—plural same as singular—in perlite society, but those that hunts 'em and naturally knows more about their habits calls 'em "quails."

CHICAGO BLANKS THISTLE TEAM, 2-0

Picked Soccer Eleven Downs the Visitors in Brilliantly Played Contest.

WILSON FORCED TO QUIT.

Following Retirement of Star Minneapolis Player Locals Score Goals.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Chicago, represented by a picked team from the local soccer league, defeated the Minneapolis Thistles, 2 goals to 0, in a spirited contest at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue yesterday.

Although defeated the visitors gave a game exhibition, playing a lot of good football, and it was not until they lost Wilson, their right back, after seventeen minutes of play in the second period, that Chicago was able to score. Wilson got a bad kick on his right ankle and was unable to continue.

For a picked team the Chicago men showed a fair amount of combination and were better in this respect than the Thistles, who are supposed to play together regularly. In the latter part of the second half the Thistle forward line made a few good attacks, but the Chicago defense was strong and the northerners got few good openings. Gibson in goal showed himself a fine custodian and had more work to do than Williams, who was between the sticks for Chicago. Score:

Williams	Goal	Gibson
Stevenson	Right back	A. Smith
Ross	Left back	W. Wilson
Overberg	Right half back	Hamilton
Cooper	Cent. half back	D. Gibson
Currie	Left half back	McLaren
B. Govier	Outside right	Thomas
Jordan	Inside right	Hilton
Shallcross	Center	Halsall
Latham	Outside left	Stockings

Goals—Shallcross [2]. Referee—W. Napier. Linesmen—Peel and Atkinson.

Preceding the intercity match Sherman Park and Palmer Park played for the 105 pound championship of the South Parks league, the former team winning 3 goals to 1, and retaining the title it won last year. Lineup:

Bonifas	Right back	G. Hannan
Radcliffe	Left back	McIntyre
B. Osborne	Right half back	Cosbey

Braceville Defeats Hibernians.

Braceville, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Playing in splendid form the Braceville Blues outplayed and defeated the Chicago Hibernians today by a score of 5 to 1. The Hibs were short two players and used two local men, both of whom played good ball. The Hibs' only score was made by McAlees on a miss by the goalkeeper.

Englewood Trims Oak Park, 3 to 0.

Englewood High school defeated Oak Park High school 3 to 0 in their first soccer of the season, played yesterday at Oak Park. Several of the home team's best players were ineligible on account of their class records. Dunne and Nyren starred for Englewood, Martin being the best of the Oak Park forwards.

GRAND PRIZE WON BY BRUCE-BROWN

New Yorker, in Fiat, Raises World's Road Race Record to 74.65 Miles an Hour.

Chicagoan Finishes Two Minutes After Winner; Nine of Sixteen Cars Drop Out.

FINISH OF GRAND PRIZE.

1. Bruce-Brown, Fiat	5:31:29
2. Hearne, Benz	5:33:33
3. De Palma, Mercedes	5:34:40
4. Bragg, Fiat	5:51:51
5. Disbrow, Pope-Hartford	6:25.44

Mitchell and Limberg in Abbott-Detroits were still running when race was declared off.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 30.—Flying faster than the biting wind that swept the frozen racecourse, David L. Bruce-Brown, the young American millionaire, today established a new world's record for automobile road races by winning his second Grand Prize race at an average speed of 74.68 miles an hour. His average last year over the same course was 70.55 miles.

The supreme honor again went to an American driver piloting a foreign car, but this year it was an Italian Fiat instead of a German Benz that carried BruceBrown to victory. His elapsed time for the 411.36 miles was 5:31:29 13-100.

Bruce-Brown captured the greatest American trophy only after a fierce, nerve racking struggle in which Eddie Hearne, driving a Benz, was second, two minutes behind, in 5:33:33 7-100 and Ralph De Palma third in 5:34:40 85-100.

No mishaps involving life or limb marred the running of what probably will be the last of these classic races at Savannah.

Five Out of Sixteen Finish.

Of the sixteen foreign and American racing machines which darted away at 9 a. m. only five finished. The others could not undergo the tearing endurance strain and were eliminated from time to time by the breaking of vital parts. American drivers demonstrated superiority over the foreign pilots. The result was a surprise, as neither of the two favorites was in the running at the finish.

The race was not called off until nearly an hour after the winner finished. Caleb Braggs' Fiat took fourth position with a record of 5:51.51, and Disbrow, in a Pope-Hartford, was the fifth and last driver to complete the twenty-four laps. His time was 6:25.44. Only the two Abbott-Detroit cars were running when the contest ended, Mitchell having completed twenty-one laps and Limberg twenty-two.

Victor Hemmery, the Benz driver, who was heavily played, was not a contender after the seventh lap. Louis Wagner, the other favorite, withdrew his Fiat in the fifteenth lap.

Interest of the spectators in the leaders was so intense that the few minutes necessary to drive the twenty-third lap dragged like hours. Bruce-Brown was the first to appear. His car whirled into sight, flew around the grandstand curve, and again out of sight. Eddie Hearne flashed by the judges' stand one minute and thirty seconds afterward. In vain the spectators shouted and waited for Mulford, but the winner of the Vanderbilt cup race was out of the race.

Mulford Forced to Retire.

With victory in the balance Mulford's Lozier went out of commission because of steering gear trouble and the plucky driver was forced to retire. De Palma jumped to third place with the elimination of Mulford and the hard fought contest for the grand prize trophy was ended after the next lap with the cars in this position.

The weather was extremely cold for the south and a cutting north wind rendered the air still more unpleasant.

The fastest lap of the seventeen mile course was negotiated by Victor Hemmery driving a Benz. In the fifth lap he made the round in 12:46, or more than eighty-two miles an hour. Bruce-Brown made the second fastest time for one lap.

Caleb Bragg, another millionaire driver of a Fiat car, was a sturdy competitor, and finished fourth, twenty minutes behind the winner. He made numerous tire changes, and in the latter part of the contest was forced to change mechanicians.

The drivers who were compelled to withdraw went out as follows: Wagner, Fiat, in twenty-third lap; Basle, Buick, in fifteenth lap; Patschke, Marmon, ninth lap; Wishart, Mercedes, ninth lap; Bergdoll, Benz, eighth lap; Hemery, Benz, seventh lap; Burman, Marmon, fifth lap; Cole, Buick, third lap.

Won by "Driving Like Devil."

Bruce-Brown made the following statement: "I won by driving like the devil toward the early part of the race. I had to make nine changes and had to put a new bolt in the front axle. There was no consistency in the race I drove. I did it by driving furiously in the beginning and then easing down toward the latter part, until I saw Hearne was going like mad, so I just dropped in to follow him and beat him."

Eddie Hearne, the Chicago millionaire, was keenly disappointed at losing a victory so nearly within his grasp, as this was his last race. Since Mr. Hearne entered for the Grand Prize there has been born to him a son, and he promised his wife that he would retire from the racing game after this contest, and never again risk leaving his boy fatherless.

PENN DOWNS OLD RIVAL, 21-9

Another Defeat for the Cornell Eleven at Philadelphia.

CROWD OF 25,000 SEES GAME.

Quakers Forge Ahead in Third Quarter and Clinch Victory.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—Pennsylvania won the Thanksgiving day football game from Cornell this afternoon by a score of 21 to 9. The two teams have met on this day for the last nineteen years and Pennsylvania has won seventeen times. Ten years ago Cornell won from the Red and Blue and five years later the teams played a tie game. About 25,000 persons saw today's contest.

In the first period Pennsylvania scored after three minutes of play, and Cornell before the period was over evened up the score. The Ithaca team then took a brace and played good football, but the Pennsylvanians showed the better staying qualities and also displayed better generalship, taking the lead in the third period and increasing it in the last quarter.

The game was good in spots, many end runs for from twenty to thirty yards being the feature plays. Lineup:

GATES' NEPHEW STAR OF GAME; PLAYS WITH A BROKEN RIB.

Henry Baker Competes with Side Incased in Plaster Cast—West Battles East to Scoreless Tie.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Henry Baker, half back on the West Aurora High school football team, who has been out of the game for a week with a broken rib, went into the annual West-East Aurora game today despite his injury when Capt. Wilford of his eleven fell ill with blood poison.

Baker was the favorite nephew of the late John W. Gates, and was left $10,000 in cash by his uncle to complete his education and $240,000 additional provided he finished a college course. He was described as a "game, good kid" by Gates.

Baker started in the game, his open field tackling being one of his features. His side was incased in plaster paris cast.

The game resulted in an 0 to 0 tie. Six thousand persons were present.

College High School Eleven Scores Drop Kick Victory Over Team Which Meets Oak Park Here.

Immediately after the game the St. John's boys left for Chicago, where they will play the Oak Park High school on Saturday for the schoolboy championship of the country. The only score came in the second period when O'Connor booted the ball over the bar for a field goal from the twenty-five yard line. St. John's team was made up largely of substitutes.

ST. VIATOR DOWNS DE PAUL, 11-0

Kankakee Eleven Takes Hard Fought Game on Local Field.

FITZGERALD SCORES TWICE.

Makes Touchdown in Each Half, One Following Forty Yard Run.

BY FORWARD PASS.

St. Viator's college, in a fiercely fought game, triumphed over the De Paul university on De Paul field yesterday, 11 to 0. One of the largest crowds ever at De Paul field saw the Red and Blue team fall before the terrific attacks of the downstaters. Fitzgerald, playing right half back, was the bright star, scoring all the points. He also played a remarkable defensive game, being all over the field at once. A. Quille was his running mate, and skirted De Paul's ends for numerous gains. To McKeown, De Paul's left half, is due much praise. Wilhoft gained considerable ground for De Paul. Fitzgerald tore around left end for the first touchdown. He then kicked goal. Five minutes after the whistle blew for the start of the second half, Fitzgerald grabbed a punt and ran forty yards for a second touchdown. Lineup:

DETROIT TRIMS LOYOLA TEAM.

Michigan Men Prove Better Eleven in Mud and Win by Close Score of 11 to 5.

Loyola university's eleven brought its season to a close at Lawndale park yesterday with an 11 to 5 defeat from Detroit university. Despite the condition of the field, which was nearly an inch deep in mud, the teams furnished an exciting game.

The work of De Coster and Barton was easily the feature of the Detroit team's play, while for Loyola the all around work of Sullivan and the line plunging by Brophy and Cahill were particularly good.

Neither team scored in the first quarter, but early in the second period De Coster intercepted a Loyola forward pass on his own thirty yard line and raced eighty yards for a touchdown. Loyola evened up the count in the next period when Sullivan grabbed a short punt in midfield and went through four Detroit tacklers for a touchdown.

The winning score for Detroit came in the last period of play, a succession of forward passes carrying the ball to the Loyola ten yard line, where Purcell shot another beautiful pass to Barton, who went across for the count. Purcell kicked goal. Lineup:

ST. JOHN'S ELEVEN HERE TODAY.

Team Which Meets Oak Park Tomorrow to Arrive This Afternoon—Reception for Visitors.

St. John's preparatory school football team, which will meet Oak Park High in a contest tomorrow afternoon on Marshall field for the national interscholastic football title, will arrive this afternoon at the La Salle street depot at 4 o'clock.

The easterners, including fourteen players, Athletic Director Thomas, and a business manager, will be met at the depot by a reception committee made up largely of eastern and western college alumni. Coach Zuppke of Oak Park will be present to receive the visitors on behalf of the suburban school, while Father Gorman of De Paul will act as host for the Catholic schools of the county. The Bay State team will be taken in automobiles to the Del Prado hotel.

Instead of enjoying a real holiday and an abundance of turkey, the Oak Park youngsters were forced to forego their annual repast and practice for two hours on Phipps' field yesterday. The workout was the last strenuous drill of the season. Today only a light signal drill is on the program.

Officials will be selected on the arrival of the easterners. It is probable these men will be chosen from a list of officials who have worked in the larger college games both in the east and west. Another massmeeting is scheduled at Oak Park for this afternoon. Over 6,000 tickets have been sold.

Coulon Athletics Trim Spaldings.

Coulon Athletics won the football championship of Chicago yesterday by defeating the Spaldings at Gunther park, 6 to 0. The teams played two short periods of ten minutes each owing to the late start. The Athletics scored their touchdown in the first five minutes of play on a long run by Jimmy Turner, after which the Spaldings held them safe. The Merrimacs and Igorrotes played a 5 to 5 curtain raiser.

MARQUETTE AGAIN TIES NOTRE DAME

Third Drawn Game Played by Rival Elevens; Neither Is Able to Score.

FEW CHANCES TO COUNT.

South Benders Miss Best Chance to Register by Fumbling a Loose Ball.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Playing with fierceness and aggressiveness, features which have characterized their games since they resumed football relations, Notre Dame and Marquette played a scoreless tie today on Campus field, and when the final whistle blew there was little to choose between the two elevens. This is the third year in which the rival teams have played drawn games.

Although the game was bitterly fought, it was much cleaner than former contests. Few penalties were levied for unnecessary roughness, and the teams had to be warned only once in regard to playing that was not within the rules. The players went after each other with grim determination, and the tackling and interference of both elevens would have been a credit to any aggregation in the country.

Notre Dame Misses Chances.

Notre Dame had two golden opportunities to score. Once in the first period Waldron booted an onside kick to the shadows of the locals' goal posts, and the Notre Dame ends got down the field in good shape, but in their eagerness to pick up the ball they fumbled and it was recovered by Marquette on its three yard line. In the second session Notre Dame, helped by a costly fumble, worked the oval to the Marquette twenty-five yard line. From the thirty-five yard line Waldron barely missed a field goal. Again in the last period Notre Dame had another chance to score by the air route, but the attempt was low.

Marquette, although it had the ball within striking distance of the visitors' goal several times, did not attempt field goals, but relied solely on forward passes and off tackle drives. The local backs drove hard and with plenty of power, and their efforts netted gains from ten to twenty-five yards on several occasions.

Combat Wears Out Players.

It was an ideal day for the contest and a large crowd turned out. Although it had snowed and rained during the week, the field was in fair condition, the surface being too slippery to permit of end running or clever dodging. Both teams showed the effects of the hard struggle when they left the field, and coaches of both elevens were satisfied, although each had expected his team to win. Lineup:

SIX LEADERS FOR SUFFRAGE

Western Governors Address Commerce Club of Toledo.

FAVORED BY BUSINESS MEN.

Out of 400 Present, All but Three Indorse Votes for Women.

Toledo, O., Nov. 30.—The seven executives of as many western states arrived here this afternoon, remaining for the night. A buffet luncheon at the Toledo Commerce club was the principal feature of their entertainment.

All the governors, with the exception of Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota, in their speeches at the club advocated the right of suffrage for women.

At the conclusion Frank Mulholland, vice president of the club, asked for an expression on the subject from the 400 business men present, and all but three raised their hands in approval.

Turkey Banquet at Detroit.

The party of executives had spent the earlier portion of the day in Detroit, where they enjoyed a turkey banquet, which a number of citizens attended.

The party made Thanksgiving history for Detroit. Thousands of people, many from other cities, attended services in a number of churches and other places where the governors from the west delivered addresses.

The principal exercises were of a union nondenominational nature and were conducted in a theater. Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota and Gov. Burke of North Dakota spoke briefly on "International Conciliation and Universal Peace."

Introduced by Osborn.

They were introduced by Gov. Osborn of Michigan, who met the visiting governors at Kalamazoo yesterday, and accompanied them on their trip through Michigan.

The ratification by the senate of the pending arbitration treaties was urged by the executives of Minnesota and North Dakota.

"OIL TRUST" ENDS OFFICIAL CAREER

Dissolution of Thirty Companies Into Separate Concerns Effected Today.

STOCK WILL BE DIVIDED.

Disintegration Will Abolish Central Office and Affect Many Employes.

New York, Nov. 30.—The career of the "oil trust" officially came to an end today. The Standard Oil company of New Jersey, sometimes called the fathers of trusts and perhaps the most celebrated corporation in the world, will no longer control the affairs, as the holding company, of more than thirty corporations in various branches of the oil business.

Beginning tomorrow, these subsidiaries, which under the decree of the United States Supreme court must conduct independently the various enterprises, will assume entire management of their own affairs.

The oil trust theoretically passed out of existence on Aug. 31, when the books containing the records of the company's stockholders were closed for distribution of the stock of the subsidiaries, but during the intervening period of readjustment it was necessary to preserve the old form to a large extent.

The stock issues representing the subsidiaries will pass into the hands of owners of old Standard Oil stock tomorrow, and the threads which have bound the old companies together will be severed.

Identity of Companies Intact.

The task of effecting dissolution was made less difficult by the fact that the subsidiary companies never had lost their identity. They have retained their separate officers and boards of directors and to a large extent have conducted their own affairs from their home offices, in whatever states they were. These companies, however, have had representation at 26 Broadway, the home of the New Jersey corporation, which exercised general direction over all their affairs. It is this connection which will end.

Subsidiaries which have not already surrendered their offices at 26 Broadway will do so, and henceforth the affairs of each company will be conducted in its home state. The Standard Oil company of New Jersey will continue to exist, as it owns several large plants.

To each stockholder will be forwarded tomorrow his proportionate share of stock in each of the subsidiaries, so that in place of one issue of stock he will have more than thirty. The subsidiaries will continue to exist as heretofore, except that in cases where the same men have acted as officers or directors of more than one company, changes will be made to avoid such duplication.

Number of Employes Affected.

In the removal of officials of subsidiaries who have had their offices at 26 Broadway a large number of men, who for years have lived in New York, will be affected. Scores of officials and clerks will be transferred to other cities.

The public's relations with Standard Oil will not be visibly affected, at least for the present. No one is able to forecast the ultimate effect of the dissolution, whether it will have any bearing upon retail prices or upon the relation of the companies in the Standard Oil group with independent producers. Increased competition is expected, but the public will be obliged to bide its time before finding out whether it is to have cheaper oil.

FINE LIVE STOCK COMES TO SHOW

HORSE STAR TOMORROW.

Third Saddle Class Arranged for Women Riders at Exposition in Chicago Yards.

The small army of men putting things in readiness for the opening tomorrow of the international live stock show spent a busy day around the big pavilion at Forty-third and Halsted streets. A few more strokes today and everything will be snug for the first blast of the announcer's bugle.

All through the day and much of the night there was an incoming stream of fine stock—sleek steers whose sole task in life has been to grow fat, great owl eyed bulls with two or three valets to keep them correctly groomed, white faced Herefords, and low, shaggy Galloways

Came also the aristocracy of the swine species, some so fat their eyes were all but closed with their surplus flesh, and much more accustomed to riding than to walking.

Thousand Sheep to Be Shown.

More than a thousand sheep will be shown in the seven days' show, and rams, lambs, and dams were hurried through the long corridors to their show pens during the day. Yet there was little bleating and baa-ing, for the Cotswolds and Shropshires and Southdowns and the like are all well bred animals and are too well behaved to make any outcry in public.

But more handsome than any of these are the 4,000 and more horses which will prance over the tanbark during the show. These horses have been given a prominent place in the program for every session, and, in addition to the 119 classes into which they have been divided, there are seven special classes which will be shown tomorrow night.

The horse show catalogue alone fills sixty-five pages, and there are thirty-one pony classes.

Show Fine Horses Tomorrow.

One of the most interesting classes tomorrow night will be that for combination harness and saddle horses. The entrants are first to be shown attached to an appropriate vehicle, after which they will be unhitched in the ring, saddled, and shown in a walk, trot, and canter.

Mrs. J. M. Harris' Lady H., a well formed black mare, will be one of the chief contenders in this class, other entries being Miss Cantril, owned by Edward Morris Jr., and the chestnut gelding, Ginger, entered by G. Russell Leonard.

An even dozen entries have been made in the class for gaited saddle horses to be judged tomorrow night. Ira M. Cobe has entered Queen C. H. Victor Keane will ride his Kentucky Prince, a fine bay gelding. Thomas A. Stevens will show two entries, Prince Squirrel and Lady Argent.

Class for Women Riders.

A third saddle class will be for horses ridden by women. Mrs. Ella Wood Dean will appear on her favorite mount, Cornish Lad, while Mrs. Ira M. Cobe will ride her bay gelding, Lexington Chief. Edward Morris Jr.'s Miss Cantril will be ridden by Mrs. M. Shannon, and Mrs. J. M. Harris will show her black mare, Lady H.

A keen competition is expected on the opening night of the show between William Daniel's bay stallion, Sir Walker Jr., and Thomas E. Wilson's brown gelding, Buster Brown. These are in the class for horses driven to a suitable vehicle and for which professional horsemen are not eligible.

There will be two pushball contests tomorrow evening, and as these contests proved so exciting in 1910 the management has arranged for a number of such contests this week. The first contest on horseback will be between five "Indians" and five "cowboys" chosen from cattle men at the yards, while the other will be between teams afoot, the men being recruited from different commission houses, between which there is a keen rivalry.

BECAUSE WE MAKE ONLY A SLIGHT CHARGE OVER REGULAR INTEREST, BASED EXACTLY ON YOUR SALARY, YOUR INCOME, OR YOUR PERSONALITY. You, backed by your salary income, appreciate frank, face to face money for you. Even if loan is small, we appreciate your business just the same. And quick service. I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, ladies with allowances from their husbands or income from other sources], who, while not in a position to borrow money from a bank, realize that exorbitant interest charged by professional money lenders is high and extortionate. I am connected with the Indiana Loan, Credit, and Trust Company of Chicago, co-partners, 4303 Grand-blvd., and, having private means of my own, I am willing to loan money with or without security and at a consideration but a trifle above bank rates, and never more than the interest legalized by the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the precise rates being determined by the amount loaned and risk assumed. My location [15 minutes from loop district via South Side elevated] assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers in downtown office buildings, where lenders congregate. Always best to telephone Drexel 54 for private appointment. Ask for MR. S.

BUSINESS MAN HAS A SPECIAL FUND TO LEND OUT; HE PREFERS TO DEAL WITH GENTLEMEN AND LADIES OF GOOD STANDING, WHO WILL APPRECIATE CONFIDENTIAL AND COURTEOUS TREATMENT. HIGH GRADE SALARIED EMPLOYES, BUSINESS MEN, AND LADIES OF REPUTABLE FAMILIES WILL BE ACCOMMODATED. WHENEVER NECESSARY, HE WILL PERSONALLY CALL ON PROSPECTIVE BORROWERS; IF YOU DESIRE A PERSONAL INTERVIEW, OR WISH HIM TO CALL UPON YOU, PHONE RANDOLPH 2805 AND ASK FOR MR. BLAIR.

Here are our reasons for the radical reductions we have made: Our policy, rigidly adhered to, is to close out within their season all incomplete lots and small quantities within the season for which they were purchased.

This year's sale is not far behind the beginning of cold weather. In fact, all the real winter season is yet to come. So patrons of this event not only will have a full season's service, but have the advantage of economies such as are obtainable only at this time. Those who will take early advantage of this sale will find styles of a more pleasing character and better opportunities to secure the desired size and style than in any similar event held in many years.
